Gov't Tests Jetfoil For Speedy Crossing

By PAT DUFOUR

Times Staff

Fast jetfoil passenger service between downtown Victoria and Vancouver is being studied by the provincial government.

It is hoped to set up a similar service between downtown Vancouver and Nanaimo.

Creation of the service will move closer next week with the testing of a $7 million jetfoil made for Hong Kong by the Boeing Company of Seattle.

Cabinet members and other politicians will be aboard the 101-foot vessel Tuesday and Wednesday when she is put through her paces on trips between here and Vancouver.

Capable of a 45-knot speed, she carries 280 passengers and is due to be shipped to Hong Kong on June 21.

A B.C. Ferries spokesman said today the main reason the jetfoil is being tested is to assess what operating costs of such a vessel would be.

"We have been studying hydrofoils for two years and one of our men has just returned from Italy where he's been examining ones there," the spokesman said. "But this is a jetfoil and, using jet fuel, she has no prop. This makes her much more suitable for our type of waters."

Boeing has designed three others, one of which is already operating in Hawaii, another is due to start working in the Hawaiian Islands in July while the third will be delivered to Hawaii later this year.

The spokesman said the jetfoils designed for Hawaii would be more suitable for British Columbian waters, being designed to push through larger waves.

BCR Probe Demanded

Opposition leader Bill Bennett today called for a judicial inquiry into the provincial government finance department and B.C. Railway.

The Sacred leader rose in the legislature and charged that the financial reputation of B.C. is at stake because of discrepancies in the railway's financial statements here and in New York.

Calling for emergency debate in the house Bennett said the matter is of utmost importance and public urgency. House speaker Gordon Dowding said he would rule on Bennett's request later in the day.

ICBC Strikers Protest

Protesting the "Inconsiderate, Callous, Barbaric Conditions" (ICBC), otherwise known as the Insurance Corporation of B.C., about 300 striking employees of the corporation demonstrated in front of the legislature today. (See picture on Page 43.)

Members of Local 378 of the Office and Technical Employees Union, on strike against the crown insurance agency for three weeks, accused negotiators for the corporation of adopting a take it or leave it attitude which precludes good faith bargaining.

In a debate with Transport Minister Bob Strachan, who emerged from the legislative buildings to confront the group on the front steps, OTEU president Fred Trotter charged the corporation had been preparing for a strike as early as March 6.

"This was way before we even got to negotiating about any controversial issues," Trotter said.

Trotter, supported by the cheering crowd, said negotiations had never dealt with wage issues because wages cannot be settled until other clauses, such as job classification, are dealt with.

Strachan, having trouble speaking over the catcalls of the crowd, told the strikers they were simply exercising their freedom to use economic power to bring the employer to its knees.

The minister reiterated earlier statement that ICBC has not indulged in strike-breaking.

"We will continue to help out on hardship cases. There is a widow whose husband was killed and she needs the death benefits right now and I'll do everything I can. If there is some old-age pensioner whose house has burned down, I'll do all I can," Strachan said.

railway and finance minister allowed misrepresentation of BCR financial picture in a prospectus filed in New York in connection with B.C. Hydro's bid to raise $150 million by sale of debentures.

The legal document is required by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, is dated May 22 and reports that the Crown corporation showed a profit of $992,000 in 1972, said Bennett.

The Sacred leader says the premier had different information in his possession at that time in preparation for a statement to legislature June 6 that because of the previous government's financial management the railway really lost $8.1 million.

"There is no mention in the prospectus that at that very time the government was preparing a political financial statement for presentation in the legislature," said Bennett.

We have a prospectus containing the financial statements of the province, signed by the deputy minister of finance (Gérard Bryson) also the secretary of the BCR ... and no mention that the auditing procedures of the railway were being investigated."

"Now we have B.C. the laughing stock of international markets because of the differences," Bennett said.

Barrett refuted all the opposition leader's charges as "malicious."

He said that when the prospectus was filed the new auditing company had been on the job only three weeks, making it impossible for their findings to be included in the document.

"The opposition leader is so wrong. He's stumbling on one issue after another but hasn't done a lick of research."

U.S. regulations required the government to file an audited statement and that was what was done, Barrett said.

The premier said he will file the latest annual report with the commission when he travels to New York next week.

Strachan, having trouble speaking over the catcalls of the crowd, told the strikers they were simply exercising their freedom to use economic power to bring the employer to its knees.

The minister reiterated earlier statement that ICBC has not indulged in strike-breaking.

"We will continue to help out on hardship cases. There is a widow whose husband was killed and she needs the death benefits right now and I'll do everything I can. If there is some old-age pensioner whose house has burned down, I'll do all I can," Strachan said.

Official miscalculations, a breakdown in communications and slow-moving authorities marked the tragic last five hours of this week's B.C. Penitentiary hostage drama, the Commons was told Wednesday.

Solicitor General Warren Allmand related the difficulties he experienced in getting regional penitentiary officials to consider quickly the offer of a still unnamed country to take the three convicts holding 15 hostages in the New Westminster institution.

Repeatedly he insisted there was no delay by the government in dealing with the foreign offer but disclosed that prison officials in B.C. were just beginning to discuss the subject when the hostages took the matter into their own hands.

Allmand disclosed: "Penitentiary officials on the scene were taken completely by surprise by the at-

Mail Rate Boost Of 33% Looming

PARIS. (CP) — Canadians can expect a 33 per cent increase in postal rates within a year, Canadian Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said Wednesday.

Mackasey in Paris to meet with his French counterpart, Eymard Achille-Fould, said the increase would be necessary to improve postal service.

The rate for first-class mail in Britain and France is twice that of Canada, while West Germans pay three times as much, he said.

The minister, while rating Canada's postal system third best in the world behind Belgium and Japan, said the immensity of the country and its sometimes tempestuous climate are responsible for periodic breakdowns in service.

Mackasey, who returns Sunday to Ottawa, is meeting with senior French officials to day and Friday and will also inspect several mail-handling centres in the French capital.

He was guest of honor Wednesday at a luncheon promoting the sale of Canadian Olympic stamps in France.

HOLDUP BID: ONE DEAD

LYTTON (CP) — One man was shot to death and RCMP were searching for another after two men attempted to rob a bank courier car near here in the Fraser Canyon.

Details were sketchy, but apparently two men in a car pulled alongside a car containing employees of the Bank of Nova Scotia on their way to a branch in Boston Bar, 22 miles south of here.

The branch in Boston Bar is open only two days a week, when employees from the Lytton branch take money by car to Boston Bar.

Shots apparently were fired by someone in the bank car.

The other bandit, who escaped on foot, was not reported injured.

Jumbo Jet Burns

The memo does not say what policy or cutbacks Treasury Board will follow when it receives spending requests.

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall agreed that the result of the government's tight spending program has been a possible reduction in the number of civil servants.

He said departments have been asked to keep staff levels the same as last year and he indicated Treasury Board has been slow in replacing people who leave.

The memo indicates that up to June 1 there was to be no purchases or replacements of any motor vehicle, equipment and machinery, office furniture, or acquisitions such as pictures, paintings or museum pieces.

Both he and Premier Barret have denied opposition statements that a 10 per cent cutback in spending is in force but say certain departments may be cutting back on the decision of individual minister.

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The Belgian government survived a parliamentary vote of confidence today over the cabinet's decision to re-equip the Belgian air force with American F-16 fighters instead of the French F-1 Mirage.

Planes Approved

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — The Belgian government survived a parliamentary vote of confidence today over the cabinet's decision to re-equip the Belgian air force with American F-16 fighters instead of the French F-1 Mirage.

The Liberals also had losses, dropping to 32 per cent from 43 per cent in popular vote, but maintained their number of seats with victories in other ridings.

Premier Allan Blakeney called on New Democrats to rejoice at "a good working majority" and said the party's losses are "perhaps a reflection on us in not sufficiently explaining our programs."

Although he had asked Saskatchewan citizens to give him a resounding victory and a decisive mandate to strengthen his hand in oil-pricing talks later this month with Prime Minister Trudeau, the NDP share of the popular vote fell to 39 per cent from the 53 per cent of the previous election.

Three cabinet ministers also tell, two to Liberals and one to a Conservative: Industry Minister Kim Thorson; Social Services Minister Alex Taylor and Co-operation Minister Don Cody.

The Liberals also had losses, dropping to 32 per cent from 43 per cent in popular vote, but maintained their number of seats with victories in other ridings.

"It is the PCs who have defeated us in this election," Steuart said, adding that in view of the impressive Conservative showing "it's a wonder we weren't wiped out."

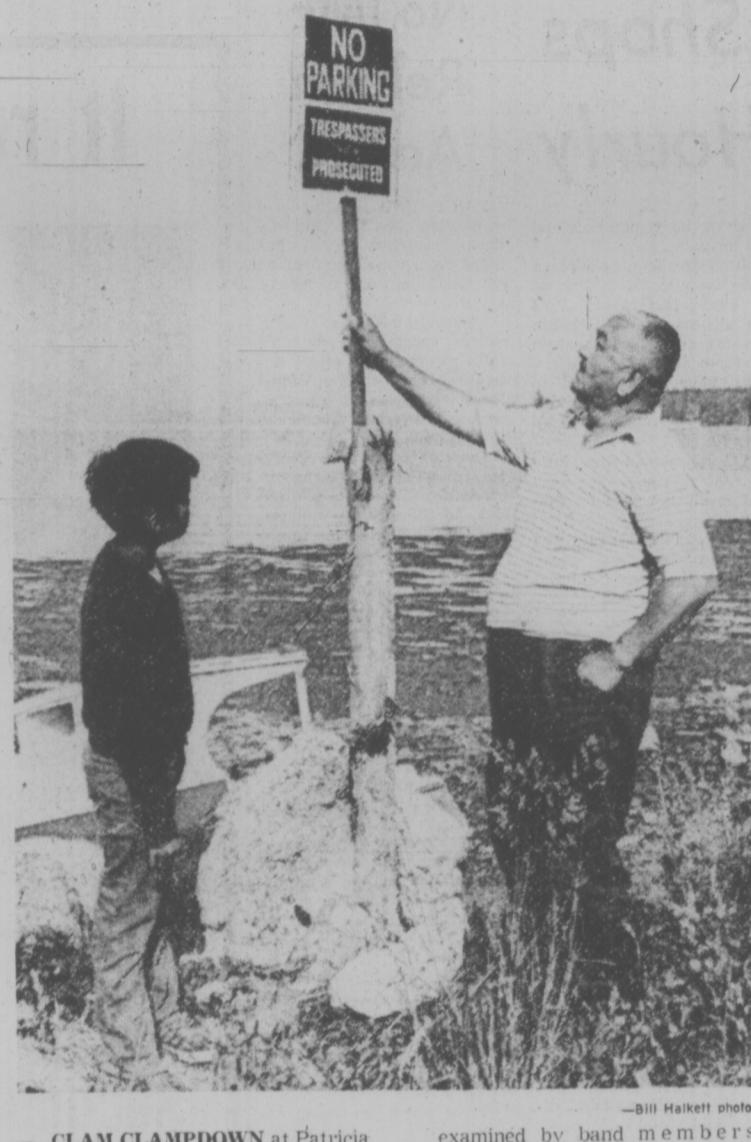

Conservative Leader Dick Collier, meanwhile, declined all public comment Wednesday night and said he would make a statement sometime today.

The 39-year-old Saskatoon businessman, chosen leader two years ago when the party had fewer than 300 members, built it up to a strength of more than 10,000.

The Conservative share of the popular vote jumped to 28 per cent from two per cent, although some of the increase was due to the fact the party had a full slate of candidates this time and only 16 in 1971.

It was the first time the Conservatives had elected a member of the legislature since 1964 and it was their best showing since they won 24 seats in 1939 and formed a coalition government.

Civil Service Cuts

But Layoffs Denied

By LINDA HUGHES

Times Staff

British Columbia's civil service has stopped growing and government sources indicate the number of government employees may decline this year.

The civil service has been growing an average of five to seven per cent a year in recent times but this year there may be fewer government employees than last, Public Service Commission chairman A.R. Richardson told the Times today.

But both Richardson and B.C. Government Employees Union representatives deny rumors of civil service layoffs.

"No continuous or permanent staff have been laid off," said Richardson, adding that recent figures show there are 36,500 government employees.

Many temporary or auxiliary staff, hired for a short term, usually three months, have not been rehired, he said, but there are no extraordinary numbers of those.

A spokesman for the B.C.G.E.U. said the union has also been deluged with rumors of layoff but has found no evidence to back up the claims.

As April 29 Treasury Board memo, acquired by the Times, instructs all departments they must receive Treasury Board approval before hiring any new staff even if approved in budget estimates would have to get further approvals.

The memo does not say what policy or cutbacks Treasury Board will follow when it receives spending requests.

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall agreed that the result of the government's tight spending program has been a possible reduction in the number of civil servants.

He said departments have been asked to keep staff levels the same as last year and he indicated Treasury Board has been slow in replacing people who leave.

Both he and Premier Barret have denied opposition statements that a 10 per cent cutback in spending is in force but say certain departments may be cutting back on the decision of individual minister.

He told reporters outside the House later that he understood the offer was not to be passed into the penitentiary until morning.

Although he attached no blame to Murphy for not turning to the penitentiary, the regional director had not immediately obeyed Allmand's instruction to discuss the foreign country's offer with his staff and get back to the solicitor general "as soon as possible."

After Allmand had related the sequence of phone calls and discussion to the House, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield demanded whether the solicitor general honestly felt "that the government's apparatus and organization for dealing with this kind of emergency is adequate."

In trying to explain the five-hour time lapse to Stanfield, Allmand said he took the advice of the "people, on the spot" not to convey the foreign country's offer to the inmates directly.

Opposition feelings were expressed by Patrick Nowland (PC—Annapolis Valley) and Stuart Leggatt (NDP—New Westminster). Both called for a public inquiry into the penitentiary system, with Nowland and Eldon Williams PC—Calgary/North seeking the royal commission.

Nowlan and Andre Fontaine (SC-Labour) also called for a renewed debate on capital punishment.

The concern comes as the federal cabinet wrestles with the problem of whether to allow the execution of several convicted killers of policemen or prison guards.

Claire Wilson, 25, and Dwight Lucas, 20, appeared in provincial court Wednesday in Vancouver, meanwhile to face a single charge each of illegal possession of weapons for the purpose of unlawful confinement.

Oil Firms 'Deceived' Canadians

CALGARY (CP)—Executives of large multi-national oil companies operating in Canada have deceived the Canadian public about the country's oil and gas reserves and should be "fined or put in jail," says the past president for the Committee for an Independent Canada.

Mel Hurtig of Edmonton said Wednesday night that the companies' misleading figures for the last four years have put the country into economic chaos and are directly responsible for 1974's record balance-of-payment deficit of $1.8 billion.

"Here we are finding we're going bankrupt importing offshore oil—a $2 billion deficit for offshore oil is forecast for 1975—and it will get worse in 1976, 1977 and on."

Gandhi 'Guilty' In Vote Charge

Times News Services

NEW DELHI—Prime Minister Indira Gandhi was convicted today of violating India's election laws—a surprise ruling that could cost her the leadership of her 600 million countrymen.

A spokesman for Mrs. Gandhi said, however, she will remain in office while appealing to the Indian Supreme Court to set aside the conviction.

The judge stayed sentencing for 20 days, so Mrs. Gandhi could appeal—a process that could take months.

She is expected to ask the Supreme Court to continue the stay on the sentence until it decides on the appeal.

The judge, however, cleared her of charges she bribed voters with gifts, provided free transportation to polling stations and spent more than the legal $3,000 in campaign expenditures.

The judge also barred her from public office for six years.

YANCOUVER (CP)—Body shop operators on the British Columbia lower mainland have decided to charge customers an hourly rate of $20 on a cash only basis—even after the current insurance Corp. of B.C. strike is over.

Before the strike began May 20, ICBC was paying the shops $15.50 an hour plus materials. The automotive Retailers' Association has asked for a raise in the hourly rate.

The decision was made by a meeting of 150 body shop operators Tuesday.

The new rate will be made up of a $20-an-hour charge for labor and a $2.85-an-hour charge for body materials and $4.30 for paint.

Bob Mousalem, chairman of the body shop division of the association said: "We need this money to maintain the same gross profit margin we had under the $15.50 rate."

"We have been forced to take this unilateral action because ICBC refuse to negotiate with us."

ICBC spokesman Bev Penhall said the insurance corporation did not wish to comment.

In Victoria the $20 rate was agreed to, about two weeks ago, with the same material and paint charges added.

KEEP SERVING, AGENTS TOLD

VANCOUVER (CP)—Independent insurance agents, members of the Insurance Agents Association of British Columbia, have been told by their executive to continue providing services despite the strike at the Insurance Corporation of B.C.

The association's statement Wednesday said "the independent insurance agents are not doing any work previously and exclusively done by employees of ICBC" and agents have a "contractual obligation with ICBC to provide public service which has nothing to do either with the inner workings of ICBC or the services provided by ICBC employees."

Fred Trotter, president of the striking Office and Technical Employees' Union which represents 1,800 ICBC employees, earlier said the agents should stop selling license plates and decals during the strike. He was unavailable for comment.

Meanwhile, an application has been made to the B.C. Labor Relations Board to determine what would constitute a strike-breaking by the civil service in the strike of the Office and Technical Employees' Union.

Some of the areas in question are the issuance of drivers' certificates and licences, said Strachan.

Two Victoria companies have been awarded contracts to help build the new Institute of Ocean Sciences at Pat Bay.

Victoria Cement Man Ltd. will be paid $117,347 to supply and install concrete slabs for the institute's warehouse-workshop and M. J. Pedderen Ltd. receives a $99,777 contract for masonry work on the same building.

The LRB will determine, he said, what work done by the government would constitute allied services and would be open to picketing by striking members of the Office and Technical Employees' Union.

Memos Raise Questions

Opposition members of the legislature continue to speculate on cutbacks in government expenditures—despite vociferous denials from the NDP benches. On May 26, Allan Williams (Ind.-Vancouver Howe Sound) said he had been told of a 10 per cent cutback in departmental spending. Last Monday, Social Credit Leader Bill Bennett produced a May 23 memorandum issued by the corrections branch cancelling a job competition due to budgetary restrictions. The memo apparently referred to an April 29 treasury board decision.

Is there a freeze or a curtailment of services, as Bennett wondered in the legislature? The Times has secured a copy of the April 29 treasury board memo. While it indicates no cutbacks in spending, it spells out very stringent procedures for most government expenditures. No grants, other than those of a statutory nature, are to be issued without trea-

Harry Truman, He's Not

One scene in a New York play about Harry Truman shows the late U.S. president extracting a three cent stamp from his wallet, licking it and affixing it to a letter to his daughter. The audience often breaks into spontaneous applause at the scene. It's a long time since public officials were so fastidious about the prerogatives of high office. The man from Independence, Missouri, would not even use his franking privileges to bilk the public of three cents. Times have certainly changed.

Our prime minister brushes off criticism about spending $20,000 of taxpayers' money to ferry him around in armed forces helicopters on what was essentially a political junket recently. An annoyed Trudeau told reporters the prime minister occupies a special position, except at election time, and is entitled to use public transport for both political and non-partisan events.

Ontario is on the brink of an election. A weekend swing through the southern part of the province by a Liberal prime minister, including a stop at the provincial Liberal leader's home, is the epitome of politics. To call the campaigning trip anything else is a sham. That Trudeau exhibits such petulance over an important issue of principle shows an unfeeling arrogance. The public has a right to expect a similar attitude from the highest elected official in Canada.

A March 18 board directive is amended so that treasury approval is required for the hiring of all temporary staff. Even staff hiring under block votes "including capital expenditure votes" is subject to board approval. No purchases of motor vehicles, equipment or machinery, office furniture or books, paintings and museum pieces are allowed until June 1.

"Effective immediately, replacement hiring or redesignation of established positions require Treasury Board approval," the memo signed by Deputy Finance Minister Gerry Bryson concludes. On January 29, Premier Dave Barrett said cabinet ministers were watching every penny, admitting that a treasury board memo had been issued to all ministers to ensure "strong fiscal control of every department." The April 29 memo appears to carry on this policy. Not that this is a revelation. A Times story last month reported stringent spending habits were to continue.

While no memo detailing cutbacks appears to exist, it is easy to see that the treasury board can effect cutbacks by refusing permission to hire new staff or buy new machinery, office space and materials. In any interpretation this is tantamount to a cutback in spending if the board is refusing spending requests, especially requests concerning expenditures already passed in the estimates. The question remains: what is the treasury board doing with spending requests? Executive members include Premier Barrett, Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall and Agricultural Minister David Stupich. They aren't saying, although it is rumored that some departments such as fish and wildlife have had their budgets severely curtailed. Other departments talk of being forced to close down existing facilities.

It is also difficult to understand why the government isn't proudly boasting about its new found frugality. Questioned in the house, cabinet ministers deny any cutbacks, cautiously affirming that they are carefully monitoring expenditures like any good government. Yet the tone of the April 29 memo suggests that purse strings are far tighter than the government cares to admit publicly. By leaving the situation murky the government only fuels speculation.

Premier Barrett should lay all his treasury board memos on the table. Is the board refusing requests for ordinary expenditures already-budgeted for? If so, why? Are revenues considerably lower than the government anticipated in the first quarter of 1975? Enough speculation has been raised by rumor and innuendo, not to mention secret memos. The public deserves some answers from its government.

Reaction to Boyle's UIC Navy

OTTAWA — Vice-Admiral Douglas Boyle is evidently in hot water for certain comments offered last weekend to Conservative members of the Commons defence committee. But the water, according to readings obtained during Monday's question period in the House of Commons, is not hot enough to please some government supporters.

The first interesting exchange involved Jean-Jacques Blais, MP for Niagara and Mitchell Sharp, who was acting prime minister. Blais, apparently incensed by some opposition probing, asked:

"In view of the fact that these comments of the vice-admiral went far beyond the scope of propriety and even constitutional propriety in these matters, what measures is the government contemplating to discipline that vice-admiral?"

Sharp, in reply, aroused the enthusiasm of the back benches by noting that the chief of the defence staff, General Jacques Dextraze, had called Admiral Boyle to Ottawa to discuss his appearance before the Conservative caucus in Halifax. This was somewhat in error. As explained by George Hees afterwards, Conservative committee members, while in Halifax, sought out the admiral for a briefing.

Warsaw Pact

Somewhat later, however, in response to John Diefenbaker, the minister of defence greatly narrowed Admiral Boyle's alleged offence. To quote James Richardson: "I should like to add in reply to the right honorable gentleman that a large part of what Admiral Boyle said is something I can agree with, and does in fact confirm statements I made here before the committee of the whole House last week when I talked about the growing danger from the Warsaw Pact and from Soviet naval strength in the Atlantic. In that sense, the admiral was confirming government policy and the statements I have made."

"However, Mr. Speaker, in looking at the press reports, it appears to me that Admiral Boyle did go beyond his authority when he spoke about the activities of other government departments, and it is in this area that I wish to talk with him."

Richardson did in fact issue such a warning and his comments in the recent debate are very relevant in this context.

Thus he agreed with Pat Nowlan (Annapolis Valley), "that it is necessary to build a momentum of public opinion behind national defence and in support of national defence."

He added: "In a democracy, such as ours, public opinion in the long run determines the size of our defence budget. As an example, I should like the Canadian public to be far more aware than it is of the growth of the number of weapons and armaments in the Warsaw Pact countries... I want the Canadian public to be as aware as we are of that growth in military capability, which is well beyond that needed for defence needs. Only if the public becomes aware of this can we generate the kind of public support needed for a larger defence budget."

had knuckles wrapped lightly

It is obvious that Admiral Boyle gave the briefing for precisely that purpose. While some of his comments may appear indiscreet to politicians, nothing in his remarks stamps him as an officer in revolt against the policy of his minister.

The context of his comments touching on other departments is not clear in reports from Halifax. They may well have been in reply to questions about possible means of finding funds to provide the equipment which the forces need if they are to do their job. Admiral Boyle's speculations about the economic waste involved in unemployment insurance and the Canadian International Development Agency's proliferating projects are obviously in tune with those of many other citizens.

As a general rule, though, ministers in Ottawa prefer to attend personally to the task of sandbagging other ministers and departments. The recent and unresolved disagreement between Labor Minister John Munro and Finance Minister Pierre Trudeau is only one example, although a serious one. Not so long ago Bert Plumbtree's activities provided the spark for an interesting set-to between Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan and Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet. It may be that Admiral Boyle transgressed by getting himself mixed up in a ministerial row that has not been publicized like the others.

On the strict defence issue, however, it would not appear that the admiral, for all his blunt comments, is in disagreement with Richardson. As the head of Maritime Command Boyle obviously suffers from a sense of desperation at having to cut back on surveillance because there is insufficient money for fuel in his budget. The minister has also been fighting for a larger defence budget.

Effective Structure

The greater contrast is between the minister and the admiral, deplored the situation in their different ways, and the prime minister who reported only last week on the heads of government NATO council meeting: Trudeau, according to his brief account, emphasized at the meeting, how important it is that our political adherence remain firm "and that our military contribution remain effective. By effective, I mean both cost-effective and military-effective." His only other comment, in answer to the NDP's Andrew Brewin, was that we had "a whole set of priorities and would try to make the defence structure as effective as possible within those priorities."

If these references mean what they appear to mean, the prime minister is apparently persuaded that our military contribution is effective now. Obviously it is not effective enough to suit an admiral forced into all these agonizing cuts and it cannot very well be effective enough to satisfy a minister of defence apprehensive about the growing threat of Soviet power.

U.S. Aloof from Nuclear Sales?

WASHINGTON — The Ford administration is disturbed by West Germany's decision to sell nuclear power reactors to Brazil, and is pressing both sides to amend their agreement, but competition in the world nuclear power field is increasing, and the administration is divided on how to deal with it.

The United States is still by far the largest exporter of nuclear power technology in the world, and Westinghouse Electric built the two first nuclear facilities in Brazil, Angra-1 and Furnas. But West Germany, France and Canada are now challenging America's lead, and Japan and the Soviet Union are beginning to enter the field.

The division within the U.S. government is over the terms of sale of nuclear reactors. The arms control and disarmament agency is increasingly alarmed by the spread of reactors that can be used to produce not only electric power but nuclear explosions.

Accordingly, it is insisting on more rigid controls and safeguards than some other countries, and the U.S. is beginning to lose contracts in the process. Washington, for example, approved a Westinghouse bid on the Brazil idea, but insisted on putting conditions on the contract which Brazil regarded as an infringement of its sovereign rights. Accordingly, the contract went to West Germany.

Other officials here, in the state department and other departments, argue that the administration's strict policies are self-defeating, that they do not halt the spread of nuclear reactors but merely divert the business to other countries and actually lead to looser rather than firmer safeguards.

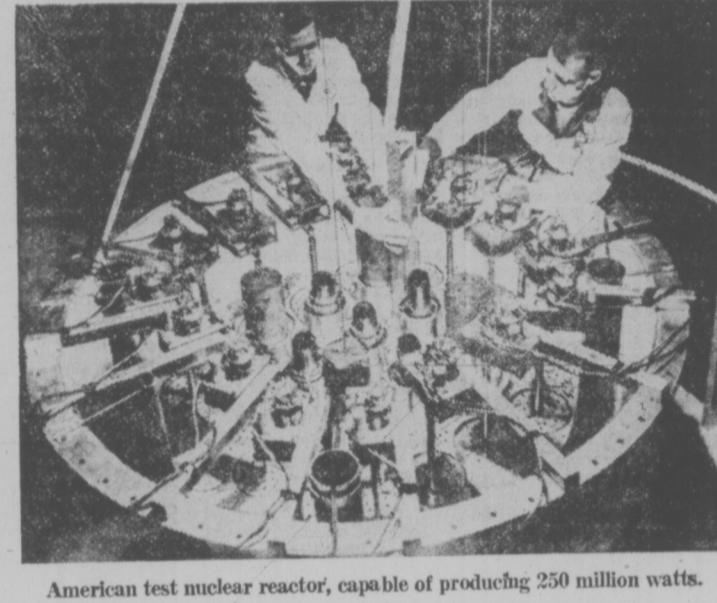

For example, the Soviet Union has just made a massive arms deal and nuclear reactor contract with Libya. Gulf General was negotiating with Libya for a nuclear power plant, but was forbidden by the U.S. government to compete in the Soviet Union for nuclear technology.

The spread of nuclear technology to Latin America has merely heightened the anxiety of officials here, and touched off an emotional debate in the senate. Senator John Pastore, for example, urged Ford to persuade West Germany to postpone the nuclear deal with Brazil until it could be discussed "at the highest level of international diplomacy."

Those in the state department backing a more "realistic" policy believe that the U.S. is losing out to France in competition for sale of nuclear reactors to Iran, and even suggest that a less co-operative U.S. attitude toward India is forcing that country to rely more and more on the Soviet Union for nuclear technology.

The spread of nuclear technology to Latin America has merely heightened the anxiety of officials here, and touched off an emotional debate in the senate.

Senator John Pastore, for example, urged Ford to persuade West Germany to postpone the nuclear deal with Brazil until it could be discussed "at the highest level of international diplomacy."

American test nuclear reactor, capable of producing 250 million watts.

"What concerns me," he said, "is the fact that this is a likely peril being instigated by an ally in our own back yard, so to speak, while at the same time the United States is heavily committed in West Germany's back yard to defend them against a likely peril."

The trouble is that the U.S. has been trying to get stricter international controls and safeguards over the shipment of nuclear fuel and reactors, without success, and the trade in this field mounts every year no matter what the U.S. does about it.

Brazil, for example, is rich in uranium, but poor in coal and oil. It has a great deal of hydroelectric power from its centres of population and is determined to develop nuclear power close to its cities.

It has not signed the nuclear non-proliferation treaty, and is at that stage of development of its vast country that it is more interested in the power than the U.S. government's strictures on political and technical safeguards.

So Washington has a dilemma. It understands Brazil's desire to develop nuclear technology, but fears that Argentina and Bolivia, both now rich in oil, will want to follow Brazil's policy regardless of whether the nations can agree on international safeguards.

This same problem exists elsewhere in the world. Among the other countries that have shown increasing interest in nuclear power are Pakistan—following India's example—Indonesia, Taiwan, South Korea, Egypt, Saudi Arabia and, of course, Iran and Israel.

Some officials here believe Ford's administration is damaging the development of its own nuclear power and even weakening the chances of getting a reliable international nuclear treaty by spreading unreasonable fears of nuclear accidents and pollution.

There are now 55 nuclear power plants in operation in the United States, and 101 under construction, but fears of contamination from these plants are slowing the financing and construction of the nuclear power; the government says it needs to make the nation self-sufficient in energy in the 1980s.

What is hampering U.S. policy in this field, both at home and abroad, is that the issues have not been resolved at the top of this government, let alone in the international field.

As in the case of negotiating price deals in essential raw materials, one agency has one view of the problem and others quite different views, and in the absence of agreement, each country is going off on its own, buying wherever it can get the best short-term deal with the least restrictions.

This is only one of many fundamental domestic and foreign policies President Ford has not had time to resolve, but in the long run it could be more important to the peace, safety and development of the world than most of the issues lately in the headlines.

'All Canadian Slob'

If Jack Scott ever wrote a thoroughly amusing article, the one he headlined "The All-Canadian Slob Known To Every Woman" is one of them, although I can't quite believe that he — being a chauvinist himself (that's what men are being called today by the opposite sex) — really means what he said.

Reading Jack's literary contributions in the Times for many years (he's one of my favorite columnists), I can't help but suspect that he has either fallen victim to his endeavor of accommodating one of his lady correspondents (which is quite possible, knowing his chivalry), or he purposely did what he did in order to provoke protest from his peers.

I vehemently object to the attitude that the "unromantic" relationship between Canadian men and women has become a way of life thanks to the behavioral pattern of Canadian men. Years of observation has compelled me to conclude that the contrary is true. When I came to Canada, nearly 23 years ago, I almost retched discovering women in supermarkets, restaurants or department stores wearing curlers in their hair. It's such a dreadful sight, women in the habit of doing this (and the majority of them do) — need not wonder that men with even ordinary taste are forced to look in the opposite direction.

Furthermore, if Canadian women would stop trying to take over the regiment the moment their marriage vows have become past history, and force their men into complete subordination to their wishes, demands and idiosyncrasies (hell breaks loose if husbands object!), many marriages could not only be saved but converted into long-lasting and satisfying relationships.

Sorry, Jack, but I had to get this off my chest. — Rudolph G. Hahn, 3260 Seaton Street.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of June 12, 1915

VANCOUVER — By an award of $1,000 and costs, a supreme court jury has freed Israel L. Rabinowitz, a barrister, from reflections made on him by the Nanaimo Herald at the time he was arrested by special constables during the Nanaimo coal miners' strike on suspicion of being engaged in picketing and intimidation. The Herald had attacked Mr. Rabinowitz, insinuating that he was not engaged in legal work at the time and had violated the traditions of the bar. The evidence which came out at the trial showed that the lawyer had received a retainer of $1,500 before leaving Nanaimo to undertake the defence of the miners, and he was engaged in inspecting the scene of the riots when arrested.

He was held in custody for 10 days.

RUSSIAN SCIENTIST 'FINDS' NEW ELEMENT

MOSCOW (Reuter) — A Soviet scientist said Tuesday he has found proof of a new super-heavy element, which might help to explain controversial questions about the composition of matter in the universe.

Tass said Leningrad research scientist George Goncharov has placed the new element at 113 in the Mendeleev periodic table of elements.

The heaviest elements synthesized so far, by both U.S. and Soviet scientists, is No. 106. The new discovery, if confirmed, would represent a substantial advance in the investigation of elements at the heavy end of the periodic table.

Goncharov made his discovery when he recorded unusually strong traces of radioactive and remnants of an inert gas called Xenon-136 — in meteoritic particles. He deduced that the traces could only have been formed by a process of natural decay of element 113.

The Leningrad scientist believes the element to be a low-melting-point metal with a lifespan of millions of years. A research team has begun analysing earth rocks to try to find traces of it.

More Woods Mediation Sought

VANCOUVER (CP) — The assistance of government mediation officers was requested Wednesday by another sector of the British Columbia forest industry.

Bill Schumacher, president of the International Woodworkers of America local in the Southern Interior region, said talks here with the Interior Forest Labor relations association have broken off.

The interior IWA is trying to keep pace with its coastal group in any contract settlement but there have been no real negotiations, only discussions, he said.

Don Lanska, a spokesman for Forest Industrial relations, which bargains for coast forest companies, had said earlier the pulp industry now is seeking a mediator in its contract talks with the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada and the Canadian Paperworkers Union.

Report Condemns Sprays

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. government concluded today there is "legitimate cause for serious concern" that gases from aerosol sprays are decaying the earth's ozone layer, creating a possible skin cancer hazard.

In the government's first study of the matter, President Ford's top environmental and science advisers both told a news conference they planned to cut down their personal use of aerosol sprays with fluorocarbon gases as a result of the report.

The study said there is substantial reason to believe that, once released, the fluorocarbon work their way up to the stratosphere and break down there to release chlorine atoms.

The report said the chlorine may break down ozone in the stratosphere. A reduction of ozone may let more ultraviolet radiation through and the increased radiation may increase skin cancers throughout the world.

The study, however, recommended that any final decision on a possible ban of such products awaits a second report not due out until next spring.

Unless that National Academy of Sciences study turns up evidence to the contrary, the report said, aerosol spray products using fluorocarbon gases as a propellant should be banned by the start of 1978.

Fluorocarbons are the propellant gas for about 60 per cent of the aerosol products sold in the United States. More than 90 per cent of those are hair sprays, deodorants and other personal care products. A ban would practically eliminate these products from the market.

Industry groups attacked the study. Du Pont issued a statement saying it strongly disagreed with it and that more research is needed.

But Rep. Les Aspin, (D-Wis.) said the report shows the time for delay has passed. Sen. John V. Tunney (D-Calif.) added: "We have a very serious problem on our hands" which demands a regulatory response.

Under questioning at a news conference, Dr. Russell W. Peterson, chairman of the President's Council on Environmental Quality said the individual American's response will have to depend on the individual but, he said, "we are going to minimize the use of aerosol cans at our house."

Whites Want Out

LISBON (AP) — More than half Angola's white population 200,000 persons — have asked to leave the black African colony before it becomes independent next fall a government spokesman said today.

"We hope the situation will stabilize and the demands to leave will stop," Information Minister Jorge Jesuino said.

He said such an exodus from the West African colony already torn by racial violence and disorder, would be "disastrous for both Portugal and Angola."

Jesuino said in the meantime the government will continue evacuating about 500 whites daily to Lisbon.

Meeting with reporters for the first time since the April Portuguese elections, Jesuino said a big influx of white settlers from the 500-year-old Portuguese colony would be heavy strain on the country's burdened economy.

He said if all those seeking to leave Angola came to Portugal, it would double the present unemployment rate of eight per cent of 250,000 jobless.

The information minister did not indicate how the government hoped to cope with Angolan emigration. But, he said the three rival black liberation movements scheduled to share power after independence "do not think it is convenient for the whites to abandon Angola now."

The Portuguese government so far has had little luck in controlling outbreaks between liberation factions that have caused more than 200 deaths in the last few weeks.

CAR RENTAL DEAL CITED

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission today accused the three biggest car renters in the U.S. — Hertz, Avis and National — of monopolizing the airport car rental business, causing consumers to pay substantially higher prices as a result.

An anti-trust complaint issued by the agency said the three firms had fixed prices, entered into a conspiracy to keep potential competitors out of airports, harassed smaller competitors and made deals with the big three auto companies for advertising payoffs which helped shore up their monopolies.

OLD SEA CADET WHARF TO BE PULLED DOWN

The wharf on the former Rainbow sea cadet property in Victoria West, now owned by the city of Victoria, will be pulled down.

City engineer John Sansom told city council this week that the old dock, which has had some timbers removed, is so dilapidated that it constitutes a hazard to neighborhood children.

The city purchased the waterfront property from the Navy League, but still hasn't decided what form of development should take place there.

BABY SALE CLAIMS DENIED

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Wednesday he has no evidence babies are being sold in B.C. through an organized crime syndicate.

If there is any reason to suspect such activity is going on an investigation will be launched, he said.

Joseph Reid, executive director of the Child Welfare League of America, said in an interview in Vancouver recently organized crime is getting into the business of selling babies to adoptive parents.

He estimated 5,000 to 6,000 babies are sold yearly in the U.S. for prices ranging from $10,000 to $25,000 and as high as $40,000.

Most of the children go to good homes, said Reid, but the practice is still dangerous.

Big Firms Facing Tax Hike

Increased income taxes for large corporations in B.C. and reduced payments for small businesses are proposed in the Income Tax Amendment Act introduced Wednesday by Premier Dave Barrett.

Income tax payable by large corporations would be increased to 13 per cent from the current 12 and small business rates would drop from 12 to 10. The proposals were previously outlined in Premier Barrett's budget speech.

A small business is defined as a Canadian-controlled private corporation with a net income of less than $100,000 a year.

The bill also proposes deduction of mineral and oil royalties prior to application of the B.C. Income Tax and deduction of income tax on additional income calculated by increased selling prices of gas.

An amendment to revise the credit allowed for logging taxes to be paid against income tax is also included to keep the credit allowed level with rates payable in 1975, said Barrett.

Renter benefits will be scaled to income to give greater benefit to those on low and moderate incomes. The benefits will be calculated to allow renters under 65 a maximum tax credit of $100, and replace the now-defunct renters' resource grant of $30.

For renters more than 65 the same formula will apply except the minimum tax credit will be $80.

Barrett also said amendments requested by the federal government are proposed to alter the foreign tax credit sections to correct technical errors and advance the final Income Tax instalment payment of corporations by one month.

The federal government amends the B.C. Income Tax Act, said Barrett, and amendments allow provision to be compatible with the federal government's.

Kelowna Lawyer Heads Team

A Kelowna lawyer will be appointed chairman of the new Legal Services Commission when it is established later this year.

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Wednesday Don Jabour, member of the provincial council of the Canadian Bar Association, will head the five-member commission.

Legislation, which sets up the commission to oversee the development and co-ordination of all legal services and legal aid in the province, was given approval in principle.

During debate Macdonald said the commission will also include Peter Milward, secretary of the B.C. Law Society, and bancher Peter Mason, as well as two lay appointees.

The commission will be independent and will decide what sort of a means test will be suitable to screen applications for legal aid.

Although the attorney-general's department can set out broad guidelines, he said, the commission will decide whether legal aid services will be operated through a storefront office, or contracted with a local society. Decisions will be made on a regional basis, he said.

Aided Homes Go Up-Island

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation has signed agreements with contractors to build 123 new condominium units on Vancouver Island — but only nine of the units are in the Victoria area.

The problem is a shortage of land in the Victoria area, says Ray Pitt, assistant manager of the local CMHC office.

And most land that is available is so expensive that condominiums cannot be constructed within the price limit.

Condominiums must be sold at no more than $42,000 each to qualify under the federal Assisted Home Ownership Program. Up-Island the limit is $36,000. However, lower land costs outside the Victoria area have encouraged construction up-Island.

Loans have gone out to builders for a $1.9-million row housing project in Nanaimo, totalling 61 units and for a $1.8 million development in Comox totalling 33 row units.

The Victoria project of nine row units is on land near the Royal Jubilee Hospital. The Victoria project is expected to be completed by year's end with the condominiums selling just under the $42,000 limit.

Ranchman's Silver Crown is triple distilled.

Because it's the best way we know to make a better gin.

Ranchman's Silver Crown is an exceptional dry Gin; triple distilling is part of the process that makes it so. Stands to reason if Gin makes a good Martini, double distilled Gin makes one better, triple distilled makes the perfect Martini. Plus a terrific Gin and Tonic, a super Gin Fizz and a host of other fine summertime drinks.

Now Ranchman's Silver Crown has a new look, a new label and a brand new bottle. But what's inside is the same fine quality. Triple distilled.

Get-It-Yourself Gas: The Service Has Gone

Being some items selected from a man's personal diary:

Item: Into my first self-serve gasoline station today; by accident, and I will make a point of seeing that it does not happen again.

Under the guise of saving us a few pennies the major oil companies are involved in a rip-off of the motoring public that ought to be obvious to everyone.

One cashier, paid at the minimal wage, needing only the ability to punch a register, has replaced the men who once provided a genuine service and, more, a check against accident-producing faults in the vehicles that came to their pumps.

If you want gas, oil, water, air, a clean windshield and, in the process, an expert, roving eye over the fundamental working parts of your car, that's up to you and you alone.

It's a trend that can only add to the already horrendous statistics on unemployment and make our roads more dangerous than they already are.

I believe that the motoring public will realize that a gas-line station must also be a service station and that anything else is a false economy. Meanwhile, it's a sales gimmick that needs to be regulated and closely watched.

Item: The death this week of a man I liked very much, Adrian Wolff-Milner, but I did not go to the funeral and have not been to one in several years. Attendance at such affairs is, I know, a mark of respect, however painful they may be, but they always intrude, it seems to me, on the remembrance of a man or a woman as they were.

I used to think that a display of grief was the best of all antidotes to the passing of a friend or relative. When I was in my late teens and had more or less adopted another family for my home away from home, the mother died suddenly. It was a family of the Jewish faith and I was tremendously impressed by what I remember as a week-long orthodox ceremony with all its symbolism and outpouring of sadness.

Yet the mother had been a wonderfully jolly woman with a strength of humor in good times and bad and I found it hard to remember her that way after the terrible, draining finality of these formalized services.

Seems to me that one day we will consider such ceremonies as archaic and that the Memorial Society idea, which calls for the removal of the body almost immediately after death and the simplest of commemorative gatherings by those who were close to the deceased, will take their place. It is certainly the way I want to go, though I don't much want to go.

As for Adrian, he is the only man I've known who took an active part in almost every community project and yet was never resented or suspected of self-interest. He was, in every way, a concerned and good citizen, that rarest of men.

Item: Purely by accident, found some 30 old reels of eight-millimetre film, exposed more than 20 years ago in the year that my hobby was home movies, in an old trunk in the basement. So we borrowed a projector and screen from our neighbor, expecting only a laugh or two, and, instead, found ourselves wallowing in nostalgia and happy memories.

I forgot now why I gave up this hobby — probably because I thought it too expensive — but I've never been sorer about anything than that I abandoned it.

No memory, no snapshot album, can bring back the past so clearly as film. It can be a tiresome exercise for one who is not involved, but for a growing family this surely is the greatest of all the records of the passing years, as fresh today as they were when they were taken. I wish I'd kept it up.

Item: Another long and fruitless argument, this time with the Victoria writer I most admire, over the effect of the biographies of literary men and women, the case in point being the new work on James Thurber.

He feels that the reader has a right to know of the agonies and the idiosyncrasies of the writer, that, if anything, it only adds to his stature to know that a work of art came out of blood, sweat and tears.

I feel that a writer should be judged solely on the basis of his published body of work and that it can only detract from this when we know what went on behind the scenes. In the case of a politician, a statesman, a soldier or any policymaker whose decisions may affect us all, then we need to know of their true personality and character, but with a writer all we need or ought to know is what he produced.

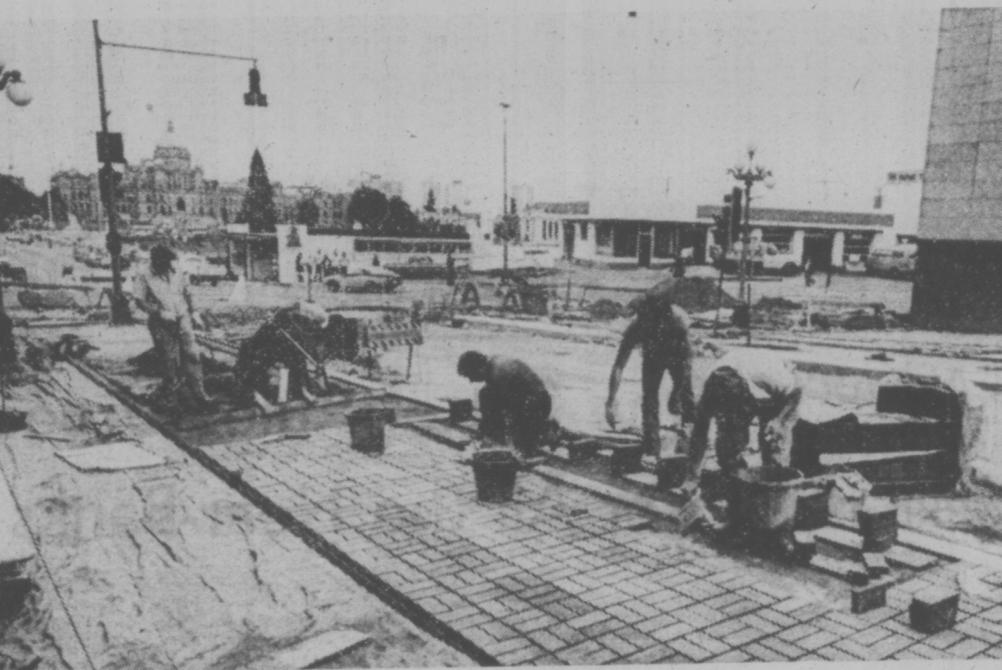

My, I do love a good argument.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you tell me if there is anywhere in Canada where one can acquire training to become a ship's radio operator? G.B.

A. There is only one commercial ship's radio operator school in Canada. It is the Red River Community College and the address is 2025 Notre Dame Avenue, Winnipeg, Man. R3H 6J9. The ministry of transport, however, trains radio operators for its coast guard ships and shore installations. There are open competitions, advertised at post offices and Canada Maritime offices. If accepted, the applicant receives six weeks of basic training locally — in Victoria this would be at the Victoria Marine Station in Snug — and then is sent to Ottawa for six months of training at the department's school. On qualifying, the graduates return to serve in their various regions.

Three-Block Effort on Mall

Three blocks of the five-block-long Government Street Mall will be completed in the first phase of construction before work is suspended for the peak tourist season.

The original schedule called for completion of only two blocks by the end of June, and then a halt to the work for July and August before it resumed.

But city engineer John Sansom has informed city council that merchants and businessmen on the 1000-block between Broughton and Fort have formally requested that the first phase also include work on their section of the street.

There was only one dissentient to the petition, said Sansom.

"They have asked if we could proceed with construction of the third block, because in their opinion the major amount of sales and tourist business takes place in August and September, rather than in the July-August period."

He said the businessmen concerned have no objection to the construction extending into the second or third week of July. But a start on widening the sidewalks would be made this month.

Meanwhile, said Sansom, work on the first two blocks is well up to schedule and concrete pouring should begin late this week or early next week.

Construction will be completed on those blocks by the end of June, and the lower section of Government re-opened to traffic by the second week in July.

Parks department staff will soon begin planting trees and shrubs, and Sansom's department is preparing designs for appropriate "street furniture" to install on the mall.

Collection To Help Fire Victims

Chris Pepper of 1025 Wychbury in Esquimalt is organizing a drive to help families left homeless and without household belongings when fire razed the 15-unit Sunset Apartments Tuesday on River Bottom Road six miles west of Duncan.

People willing to donate furniture, bedding, kitchenware and other household items can drop them off at Pepper's home or at 1209 Rockheights in Esquimalt and 1623 Sheridan in Gordon Head.

Those who have articles to donate but want them picked up can phone 386-6277, 382-2519 or 477-5927.

Fire broke out in the penthouse suite of the three-storey building at 3:30 a.m. Members of the Saanich volunteer fire brigade battled the flames for several hours.

Cause of the fire is still being investigated. There were no injuries.

The building was owned by Corey Kallum of River Bottom Road, returning June 17.

SAANICH POLICE CONST. BOSENCE will speak on rape Monday, June 16, at 8 p.m. to a meeting of the Victoria branch of the Family Planning Association of B.C. Any interested is invited to attend the meeting at Spencer House, 1947 Cook St.

Early Start On Upgrading City Firetraps

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Victoria Fire Chief Eric Simmonds plans an early start on ordering the upgrading of safety standards in several of the city's elderly firetrap buildings, including hotels and rooming houses.

Simmonds, finally given the powers this week that he has been trying to obtain for at least three years, said today he will meet with his senior officers within the next few days to establish priorities for tackling the most urgent problems.

At the top of the list will be 11 hotels and 15 apartments, some of which have been described by city officials as "horror stories" of potential hazard to life.

The green light was given by city council in caucus on Tuesday, after months of indecision on what form the fire chief's powers should take, how much personal discretion he should be allowed in enforcing them, and what building codes or standards should be used as a yardstick.

Simmonds originally suggested that all such provisions be written into a thoroughly revised version of the city's fire prevention bylaw. He and city solicitor Jakob de Villiers spent some time drafting the amendments.

But when they were presented for discussion this spring, council couldn't reach any agreement on the precise wording.

Some aldermen argued that any bylaw attempting to enforce the unnecessarily rigorous requirements of the National Building Code would place an unfair financial burden on the owners of older buildings.

Finally, de Villiers pointed a way out of the dilemma last month. He noted that a special city bylaw might be superfluous, as all the fire prevention powers sought by Simmonds were contained in the provincial Fire Marshal Act which was amended and toughened up last year.

Among other provisions, the act allows the fire marshal's local assistant to order any building owner to upgrade fire exits, fire alarms and detection systems, emergency lighting and other safety standards, regardless of the requirements of municipal building regulations.

But still city council was concerned, because the act does not involve municipal council in the appeal procedure.

It merely allows any building owner to appeal a written order of the fire chief to the fire marshal himself; or to launch further appeal to a county court judge if the expense involved in compliance with the order exceeds $500.

Aldermen asked de Villiers to give an opinion on whether the city could have some say in the appeal procedure, but he informed them Tuesday that he didn't consider that possible.

"It would be usurping the powers of the fire marshal and the courts," he said.

David's Plugged In Again

David Saville Peck has a phone again.

B.C. Tel assured Saville Peck late Wednesday that his phone service would be restored immediately, he said.

Saville Peck, of 1015 Jenkins, had his phone cut off by B.C. Tel early Tuesday because he refused to pay a "mainland credit" payment of $200.

B.C. Tel was asking for the $200 payment because of a three-year dispute Saville Peck has had with the telephone company in England over a bill. The company here said he would get his $200 back after he settled the disputed British bill, also for about $200.

After a Times story Wednesday, Saville Peck said the company has agreed that he does not need to pay either the $200 credit payment to B.C. Tel or the $200 British bill.

He said he made out a British money order for £10, payable to the General Post Office which operated Britain's phone system as a "show of good faith."

He turned over the money order to B.C. Tel which will send it to England and try to get an itemized account of Saville Peck's disputed British bill. In three years of correspondence about the disputed bill, Saville Peck has been unable to obtain an itemized account.

Summer Law Course for Teachers

A summer course in law — believed the first of its kind in Canada — will be offered this year for high school teachers attending the University of Victoria Summer Session.

The announcement was made Wednesday night by Dean Murray Fraser of the Faculty of Law during his opening address to the three-day national conference on legal aid being held at UVic.

Fraser said the course, jointly sponsored by the faculties of law and education, is designed to prepare better those teachers who will teach in the Law II high school program.

"The law should be made known and understood by all,"

he said. "With this course we are making a small stab in that direction."

Eventually the course, entitled An Introduction to Law and Canadian Legal System, may be expanded into a series, he added.

Teachers will receive credit for successful completion of the course which will be held on an intensive basis for a three-week period during July.

The instructors will be law professors Ronald Chaffins, William Charles and Lyman Robinson assisted by Gary Goulson of the faculty of education.

Production Slips For the Big Nine

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Production was down in nine of 13 important categories in British Columbia during the first two months of this year, according to a report released today by the provincial department of economic development.

Heaviest losses were in lumber production and lead shipments, both down 31 per cent from the same period in 1974.

Other substantial losses were encountered in crude oil production, down 16.5 per cent; natural gas, down 15 per cent; copper shipments, down 23 per cent; molybdenum, down 20 per cent, timber sealing, down 24.5 per cent and plywood production, down 29 per cent.

Paper production to the end of March was down marginally at 8 per cent.

The one bright spot was the continuing high level production of coal.

Total production in the first two months was 1.5 million tons, up 57 per cent from the same period in 1974. Zinc shipments were up 7 per cent and pulp production up 2.3 per cent.

The total value for factory shipments of manufactured goods for the first two months was $1.1 billion, up 5 per cent, but this reflected higher prices for goods rather than an increased volume of shipments.

The main indicators of the economy, timber and lumber cutting, were both down sharply as were petroleum and copper production, the main minerals of B.C.

Fish landings for the first two months of the year were down 15 per cent while farm cash receipts totalled $50.7 million, about the same as in 1974.

Both imports and exports were down in Vancouver during the first two months.

Exports totalled 5.1 million tons, down 17.6 per cent, while imports hit 900,000 tons, down 18.5 per cent.

Imports in February had totalled 600,000 tons, which was slightly higher than the total the previous February, but January imports had amounted to only 299,000 tons.

Exports in February had reached only 2.2 million tons, down from 2.9 million the previous February.

There was some sign of recovery in copper production, although the two-month total was 23 per cent below the level of the same period last year.

Copper shipments in February totalled 47.4 million pounds, lower than the 55.5 million the previous February but up strongly from 20.6 million pounds in January of this year.

The two main sectors of the forest industry continue to show diverging trends. Wood products such as lumber and plywood maintained a downward trend in production and shipments while the value of pulp and paper products was as high or higher than the level last year.

The forest industry, however, believes that for the remainder of the year, the market will improve for lumber and decline for pulp and paper.

Besides paper products, there was an increased dollar value in shipments of foods, beverages, chemicals and chemical products during February.

The figures are the latest available for a cross section of the B.C. economy.

Wallace Slams Corner-Store Beer Plans

Canadian Press

The sale of liquor in corner stores could dramatically increase alcoholism in British Columbia, Conservative leader Scott Wallace told the legislature Wednesday.

Before initiating the changes, the government should examine the degree to which increased access to liquor leads to increased consumption, Wallace said before two bills that would relax B.C. liquor laws received second reading, approval in principle.

Quoting from national reports, he said Canadians drink 30 per cent more today than they did 25 years ago.

He said 64 per cent of Canada's murders are associated with alcohol and 44 per cent of B.C.'s fatal car accidents last year involved liquor.

The Conservative leader also quoted reports on the "so-called civilized" drinking habits of Europeans.

In France, he said, the average person drinks three times the amount of a Canadian and 42 per cent of the total French expenditure is on alcohol-related diseases.

There is no question that liquor consumption is directly related to availability and cost, he said, and "the passage of this kind of bill must lead to a greater consumption of alcohol."

Garde Gardom (Ind. — Vancouver-Point Grey) agreed with Wallace's remarks but said he would support the legislation.

Gardom suggested B.C. take the California approach and remove the minimum price on liquor so vendors could compete with each other. Greater freedom to the vendor would also lead to a greater selection and better service.

He said the government's intention to retain a law-ordering closure of liquor outlets on election days is "an ignorant anachronism" but most of the legislation is "bringing British Columbia into the century in which it belongs."

SHUFFLE DEFENDED

Resources Minister Bob Williams said Wednesday reorganization of his department has solved most of the complaints of inaction expressed in recent years by government biologists.

Several biologists quit the Pollution Control Branch last year complaining of poor administration but Williams said while those problems were legitimate at the time a reorganization has taken place since.

The PCB has become more of a regulatory and permit agency, he said, with fewer biologists on staff.

More biologists and scientific help may have been shifted over to environmental studies where they are able to do more pure research and special studies which will eventually be reflected in PCB policy, said Williams.

He was responding to questions in the legislature from Liberal leader David Anderson, who recalled the resignations of PCB biologists last year and pointed out the biology staff had decreased in this year's estimates from 11 to seven.

Outside the house, Anderson showed a memo from a PCB member who noted the departure of "several good biologists" because of poor administration.

"That is, they are tired of accomplishing nothing and being token biologists for the PCB administrators."

He said political considerations by the Sacred government "clouded efficient operations" and the Sacred opposition has made only a feeble attempt to defend its party.

ments at the Port Alice pulp mill and $10 million at Woodfibre pulp mill.

Plans for new pollution controls at the government-owned CanCel operations will cost "tens of millions of dollars," he said.

Quit BCR Board, Barrett Urged

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

Two independent MLAs Wednesday called on the provincial government to "hold BCR operations at arm's length" and free the Crown corporation from the political interference of the former Sacred administration.

Independent MLA Allan Williams asked for the removal of Premier Dave Barrett and Economic Minister Gary Lauk from the railway's board of directors to allow control by senior officers.

"The president should be a full-time 24 hours-a-day employee in charge of the railway — how else can management be expected to function?" asked Williams (West Vancouver-Horseshoe Sound).

Pat McGee (Ind.-Vancouver-Point Grey) said BCR has gone through four scandals since he was first elected.

"It happens every time there's a change of government for some reason. Some future government will have to stand up and do something."

McGee said there is little doubt the development of the railway was impaired by political motivations.

"It's in greater jeopardy than any time since its inception."

The Sacred administration "deserved to be condemned" for hiding $62 million in losses by the railway since 1957, but the provincial government must couple that with other measures, he added, saying the present government must put the railway on its feet by conducting a major revision of resources policies.

"The only way to head off financial disaster is to begin getting revenue from resource freight over the Dease Lake extension," said McGee.

And, Crown corporations have to be "depoliticized."

"I do not believe we can make professional people the scapegoats in 'political vendettas. Get at arm's length from BCR," he told the government.

Debate occurred during consideration of the government's bill to increase BCR borrowing power from $440 to $650 million.

During debate Liberal MLA Gordon Gibson (North Vancouver-Capilano) said opposition speakers have failed to refute Barrett's charges. He also called for the government to provide incentives to development of resources to make sure the railway is used profitably.

Sacred MLA Don Phillips (South Peace) said Barrett's charges are "nothing short of card-sharking."

Three reports presented by Barrett, he said, indicated "nothing scandalous, or very derogatory" about the previous government's handling of BCR operations.

"I charge the premier with being guilty of political knavery."

Uniform classification procedures were started in B.C. Rail's auditing statements in 1956.

"Everyone knows," said Phillips, "that if you go to four different accountants you'll get four different views on accounting."

The premier, said Phillips, connived and conjured the "scandal" to cover up losses during 1974 of $32.6 million.

Labor Minister Bill King, a former director of the BCR, said initial problems in the railroad operation extended through safety standards, accounting procedures, standard of maintenance and accounting.

"There was a great deal left to be desired" when the NDP government came to power.

"It was a great lament, a sorry state of industrial relations, dissension ... in fact a dynasty set up by the previous administration."

He said political considerations by the Sacred government "clouded efficient operations" and the Sacred opposition has made only a feeble attempt to defend its party.

Unique Status Planned For Resort at Whistler

The creation of a special municipality called the Resort Municipality of Whistler was proposed in legislation introduced Wednesday in the legislature.

The legislation is unique and may make possible designation of other areas, like Tofino which must handle a great influx of people, he said.

Municipal Affairs Minister Jim Lorimer said the province would be able to assist financially the Whistler-Mountain-Garibaldi-Alta Lake area and later be repaid by commercial interests getting the benefits.

"The facilities have to be provided for everyone and obviously it's too expensive for the local government."

Whistler is an unorganized territory represented by a regional district.

The Resort Municipality of Whistler Act provides for a local council including three elected aldermen, one elected mayor and one cabinet-appointed alderman. Weekend residents would be eligible to run for office, said Lorimer.

Services will be phased in and depending on when the legislation is approved, the provisions of the act could take effect in a month's time, he said.

Total cost of sewage services is estimated at $10 million and water services will be additional.

"When these facilities are in place, substantial commercial development is expected in the resort areas," said Lorimer, "and the province will recapture funds it's putting out."

Eventual name of the new municipality will be decided on by local residents.

All bylaws would require approval of the inspector of municipalities, the minister or cabinet.

Speaker Gordon Dowding ruled Wednesday that Liberal MLA Gordon Gibson (North Vancouver-Capilano) was not guilty of a breach of privileges in questions he asked about the Princess Margaret.

Last week, Gibson asked if there is actually no legal directors of the private company set up to operate the Marguerite since all the members hold their shares in trust for the public.

Gibson said section 88 of the Canada Corporations Act states directors must hold shares in their own right.

Early this week, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Gibson was either "recklessly wrong" or "deliberately misleading the house" in making those statements because the section allows exclusions which would apply to the B.C. Steamship Corporation.

Dowding said Wednesday he finds that bylaws of the corporation allow it to have directors holding their shares in trust for the people of B.C. but he said he did not believe Gibson was aware of the bylaws.

The mis-statements, therefore, were the result of lack of knowledge rather than a purposeful abuse of privileges, said Dowding.

Gibson replied that he had not had access to the company bylaws and he asked Macdonald to withdraw his charges.

Macdonald said he still believed Gibson was "recklessly wrong."

About 14 seats went to employer-members. Ten of the remaining 28 seats are to be held permanently by the major industrial countries — Britain, Canada, China, France, India, Italy, Japan, the Soviet Union, the United States and West Germany.

Expansion Eyed for Ocean Falls

The province's wood supplies will support expansion of the Ocean Falls Corporation to include a new sawmill and pulp mill estimated at more than $100 million, the president of B.C. Cellulose Limited said Wednesday.

W. R. Jones who is also on the board of directors of Ocean Falls, said the Bella Coola resource study conducted by the provincial government over the past year will be released soon and will justify the expansion on the basis of wood supply. "We're looking at an investment of over $100 million," Jones told the all-party committee on public accounts.

In addition to increasing the crown corporation employee roster by some 400 jobs, he said, a new sawmill with capacity of 160 million board feet annually and the pulp mill with 800 tons daily production, would ensure better economic picture for Ocean Falls.

Jones said a Vancouver consultant firm is currently assessing whether the expansion will be economically feasible and the firm's report can be expected in four months.

He said he is "delighted" the resource study justifies the establishment of the sawmill.

"There has to be major capital expenditures at Ocean Falls as rapidly as possible because, although the current situation is satisfactory, it is incongruous to expect a paper mill to exist without its own pulp mill."

Canadian Olympic Coins—A Perfect Gift for Father's Day.

"IF YOU THINK I'M BUYING OLYMPIC COINS
JUST TO SUPPORT THE 1976 OLYMPICS,
YOU DON'T KNOW
GORDON SINCLAIR!"

"Sure, I think the Olympic Coin Program is a great way to support the Olympics and help our amateur athletes make a good showing at the '76 Games. But I'm a businessman too. Leaving sentiment aside, I want to be sure I'm getting value for money when I put dollars on the line."

I've looked into it carefully, and I'm sure I'm making a wise move when I buy these beautiful Olympic Coins. They're 92.5% pure silver (sterling silver), and most folks know precious metals are among the most valuable commodities in the world. Olympic Coins are not just commemorative medals, they're legal tender guaranteed by the Canadian Government for their full face value.

No one can predict the worth of Canadian Olympic Coins in years to come. But I've investigated the current market value of past issues of Olympic Coins and the gains have been dramatic. For instance, the Munich '72 10 D.M.—issue price $3.50—is now worth $14. An increase of 300%—and that's some increase in anybody's language.

These are some of the "good business" reasons why I'm putting money into the Olympic Coins but, as a Canadian, I'll be proud of my collection too. It will be a treasured memento of my participation in the success of the first-ever Olympic Games to be held in Canada."

Series III, "Early Canadian Sports," depicts a nostalgic glimpse of Canada's Sports Heritage. Of the Olympic Coins to date, Series III is uniquely Canadian. Each coin captures, in precious Sterling Silver, a glimpse of Canada's sports heritage. Rowing, cycling, canoeing, and lacrosse are depicted in exquisite detail by famed Canadian artist, Ken Danby. Buy them for yourself as a souvenir of the '76 Games or as unique gifts for your family, friends or business associates.

THERE ARE 2 WAYS YOU CAN BUY THESE STERLING SILVER TREASURES

1 FROM BANKS, FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS AND AUTHORIZED COIN DISTRIBUTORS.

Option One allows you to select from the entire range of Olympic Coins either singly or in sets of four. Coins from Series I, II and III are now available. Two beautifully crafted presentation cases with Brilliant Uncirculated coins are available—"Custom Set" at $55.00 and "Prestige" at $60.00. The top-of-the-line Proof Sets, with double-struck coins from specially selected blanks, cost $82.50 with a deluxe case. Nanaimo Par Inflated by Wind

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Times Staff

NANAIMO — It depended on to whom you talked, but par varied Wednesday at Nanaimo Golf and Country Club.

Veteran Willingdon Cup performer John G. Russell of Point Grey in Vancouver, after posting an unpretentious 78, figured "it played like a 75."

Carl Schwantje, the husky blond from Victoria Golf Club who won the B.C. amateur five years ago, figured he was "about two under par" and expressed mock dismay when he totalled his score card to read 74.

Grant Rutledge, the father of one competitor (Jim) and the caddie for another (Victoria city amateur champion Cec Ferguson), also figured par was in the high 70s.

"When I heard Jim shot an 80, I figured he had a bad round," said Grant. "But the way things are going, he's right in the thick of things."

Well, almost.

Par on Nanaimo is 72. But that's on the card. In the minds of most competitors who fought their way through the first, wind-played round of the B.C. amateur championship here Wednesday, it might have varied anywhere from 74 to 80, and they wouldn't dispute it.

Even Hobis wasn't sure he was at par. Now living in Prince George, the 32-year-old former Cedar Hill champ thought he "had a super day" just to get to par.

It was tough. The wind and 6,554-yard beast they built over a one-time coal mine humbled a record field of 152 of the province's top amateurs.

It was Wednesday's steady wind that made the course ugly.

"It's an entirely different course in the wind," said Russell. "I played the wrong club on eight of the first nine approaches."

Only two players tied or broke par.

They were Uncle Booth of Vancouver's Marine Drive, the long sub-par shooter with 36-35-71, and former Victorian Bill Hobis, who came through with 37-35-72 to hold down second place going into today's round.

Even Hobis wasn't sure he was at par. Now living in Prince George, the 32-year-old former Cedar Hill champ thought he "had a super day" just to get to par.

The par-three holes in Nanaimo, Hobis figures, are "as tough as you'll want to play anywhere. On most courses, the par-three holes can be the key to a sub-par round. They are good birdie chances, but not today."

It humbled some of the best. Canadian champion Doug Roxburgh had his run-in with the beast by scoring a six-over 78. The favorite before they started, he didn't help his cause with a sour iron game. He has hit iron shots much better than he did Wednesday.

"You just didn't know what the wind was going to do," he explained. "I might have started guessing."

Ferguson, the Victoria champ, had a four-over 76. He was even after 13 holes but went four over on the last five. Still, he's in solid contention.

Even a hole-in-one couldn't help improve scoring too greatly. Ernie Lemay of Vancouver scored the day's ace on the 154-yard eighth. The hole-in-one was nice, but Lemay didn't think much of it.

That means he has to give his dad, Cliff, two pops ... Jeff's uncle, Harvey Wylie, may be recognized as the former football star with Calgary Stampeders ... One of these days B.C. could wind up fielding three John Russells on one Willingdon Cup team ... There's John G. of Point Grey (the former B.C. champ and best known), John F. of Seattle, B.C. junior champion Sandy Harper of Nanaimo and Marine Drive's Gary Wozniak.

ENRAGED TIGER: Willie Horton of Detroit Tigers (23) lifts California Angels' catcher Ellie Rodriguez aside to get to pitcher Frank Tanana after a close pitch in fourth inning of Wednesday night's American League game in Detroit. Trying to restrain

Pitcher Finds Horton Worship Better as Long-Range Affair

By The Associated Press

Frank Stanton used to worship his boyhood hero Wednesday night and didn't like what he saw—or heard.

The tempestuous Detroit Tiger outfielder, enraged by a close pitch from the California Angels' pitcher, roared out to the mound and triggered the wildest free-for-all of the 1975 baseball season.

By the time it was over, both teams stormed the field with their feet and fists flying. The untamed Horton did most of the damage, swinging at everyone and everything. A lot of feelings were hurt, along with a couple of egos.

The Angels went on to win the first game of the double-header 14-7. The second game was suspended because of the American League's 1 a.m. curfew law with Detroit winning 5-3 and will be completed tonight.

The last thing you want to do is get Willie Horton mad," said Stanton, who said he's a Horton fan while growing up in Detroit.

The pitch that got the whole thing started was an inside delivery that brushed back the Tiger strummer in the fourth inning. Horton gave Tanana a menacing look, then pointed a finger at the young California pitcher and rushed to the mound.

Things were comparatively tame around the rest of the American League. New York Yankees beat Minnesota Twins 5-1; Kansas City Royals whipped Cleveland Indians 7-1; Oakland A's stopped Milwaukee Brewers 5-3; Baltimore Orioles trimmed Texas Rangers 3-2; San Diego Padres vs. 10 innings and the Boston Red Sox turned back the Chicago White Sox 9-7 in 11 innings.

In the National League, San Francisco Giants blasted Philadelphia Phillies 8-3, Cincinnati Reds edged St. Louis 3-1, San Diego Padres defeated Montreal Expos 3-1, and Houston Astros whipped Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1. A game between Chicago Cubs and Atlanta Braves was rained out.

The donnybrook at Tiger Stadium delayed the first game for 20 minutes. Before games calmed down, Horton had taken on about a half-dozen Angels and a couple of his own team-mates who were trying to restrain him. No solid punches were landed.

Duncan, who had hit a pair of two-run homers earlier in the game, started the 10th with a single off Stan Thomas. After Mark Belanger hit into a forceout, Singleton lined his game-winning hit to center field.

PELE DEBUT TELEVISION

Philip Wooman, commissioner of the North American Soccer League, has confirmed Pele's debut with New York Cosmos in an exhibition game against Dallas Tornado will be telecast live by CBS-TV (Channel 7) at 12:30 p.m. Sunday.

Meanwhile, in league games Wednesday, Miami Toros blanked host Tampa Bay Rowdies 2-0 and Boston Minutemen edged host Baltimore Comets 2-1.

Rudy Rojas unloaded a three-run homer and rookie Dennis Leonard gave up six hits, leading Kansas City over Gaylord Perry and Cleveland. Rojas' homer, his first of the season, highlighted a four-run fourth inning.

Reggie Jackson's 12th home run of the season, a two-run shot, triggered a four-run sixth inning and propelled Oakland over Milwaukee. A single by Joe Rudi and Jackson's homer erased a 2-1 Milwaukee lead.

Ken Singleton's 10th-inning RBI double gave Baltimore its victory over Texas. Dave Squieres unloaded a hitting streak to 11 games with a single in the fourth inning and then came in on Mabee's fourth home run of the season. Mabee now leads the league in runs-batted-in with 15.

Derek Drinkwater struck out seven batters and yielded five hits as he went the distance for the pitching victory.

Hamilton WHA Entry Hinges on New Rink

CARLSBAD, Calif. (CP) — Ben Hatzkin, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the World Hockey Association, announced Wednesday that it is the recommendation of the league's expansion committee that the city of Hamilton be granted a franchise.

The possible franchise, for the 1976-77 season, would be contingent on certain WHA requirements, among them an arena of 15,000 minimum capacity and approved ownership.

The WHA's expansion committee further recommended that league membership peak at 18 teams within the next three years.

The league's board of trustees, holding their annual meeting here, also disclosed plans for an unbalanced 80-game schedule encompassing three divisions made up of New England, Cleveland, Cincinnati, and Indianapolis in the east; Houston, San Diego, Minnesota, Phoenix, and Denver in the west; and Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Quebec, and Toronto in the Canadian.

Status of the Baltimore franchise is still unresolved, and barring new developments, there will be a player draft June 19 in Toronto of Baltimore and Chicago available players.

Following the special draft, in which the new Denver fran-

Griffin Runs For Record In Mile Race

VANCOUVER — Tom Griffin of Mt. Douglas will be one of several high school track stars competing in a sanctioned one-mile race tonight during half-time of the Vancouver Whitecaps-Los Angeles Aztecs North American Soccer League game.

Object of the event is to shatter the Canadian high school record of 4:39.2. Griffin, who captured the 800 and 1,500 metres at the B.C. championships, has a best time of 4:10. John Martens of Burnaby South, also competing, has a best of 4:10.2.

DESPERATE ROUND IN CRICKET

LONDON (AP) — The second round of the World Cup cricket tournament was a desperate, hard-fought affair Wednesday, with India, England and Australia the early winners.

India beat East Africa by 10 wickets. Australia overcame

Sri Lanka by 52 runs and England defeated New Zealand by 80 runs.

In a late result the West Indies defeated Pakistan by one wicket with Majid Khan the top Pakistani scorer on 60.

At the Oval in London, Sri Lanka last two batsmen injured by fast Australian bowler Jeff Thomson as they chased Australia's total of 329 for five. The Australian score included 101 by Alan Turner.

Keith Fletcher played the leading part in England's victory over New Zealand at Trent Bridge. Fletcher made an immaculate 131 before he was run out.

India, which plays New Zealand Saturday, kept its hopes of a semi-final place alive with a demoralizing 10 wicket victory over East Africa, whom they dismissed for 120 in 55.3 overs.

Boys' Club Floors Cougars

Victoria Boys' Club Blazers tumbled Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Hockey League 9-4 earlier this week during an exhibition game played on the floor of the old UVic gymnasium with regular hockey sticks and a plastic puck.

Dwayne Pack, Mike Kendrick and Jim Lang each scored twice for Blazers while single tallies were notched by Don Gow, Glen Rogers and Don Rogers.

Rick LaPointe led Cougars with two goals while singles were scored by Curt Fraser and Garry Slezak. Mel Bridgeman, top choice in the recent National Hockey League draft, was held to three assists.

Dale Shaw Qualifies In Britain

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (CP-Reuter) — Alison Sheard of South Africa shot the lowest score ever by a woman on St. Andrews' Old Course Wednesday, a six-under-par 70 in qualifying for the British women's open championship.

The 23-year-old South African stroke-play champion had an eagle and five birdies in her round and wound up the two-day 36-hole qualifying in a third-place tie with 150 with Australian Sandy McCaw.

Defending-champion Carol Semple of the United States, with a 71, was at 144, five strokes better than compatriot Nancy Syms.

Three Canadians were among the qualifiers.

Dale Shaw of Victoria cracked a 76 for 158. She was followed by Liz Hoffman of Toronto at 160 and Vancouver's Marilyn Palmer at 161.

Mrs. Hoffman posted a 76. Wednesday and Miss Palmer an 82.

Match play started today.

Tentative Agreement On Series

MONTRÉAL (CP) — Representatives of the National Hockey League and the Soviet Ice Hockey Federation have reached tentative agreement on an international hockey series to be played next winter, the NHL office announced Wednesday.

Soviet officials will return to Moscow to seek final approval for a series of games that would pit each of two Russian club teams against four NHL teams in NHL arenas next December and January. The two Soviet teams would be chosen from Moscow Spartak, Moscow Dynamo, Soviet Army and Soviet Wings, all members of Russia's major league.

An NHL spokesman said participating teams probably will be selected at the league's annual meeting here next week, although the proposed series is to be reviewed by "principals of both organizations."

An NHL spokesman said a proposed tournament pitting open national teams chosen from Canada, the United States, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Sweden and Finland was not discussed at the meeting.

Such a tournament, which would be played in September, 1976, has been suggested by Marc Lalonde, federal health minister, and Alan Eagleson, president of the NHL Players' Association.

Ever wonder why nobody is comparing their car to a Mazda Rotary RX-4?

Comparison ads are all the rage these days. Yet nobody seems to be putting their car up against our Mazda Rotary RX-4.[†]

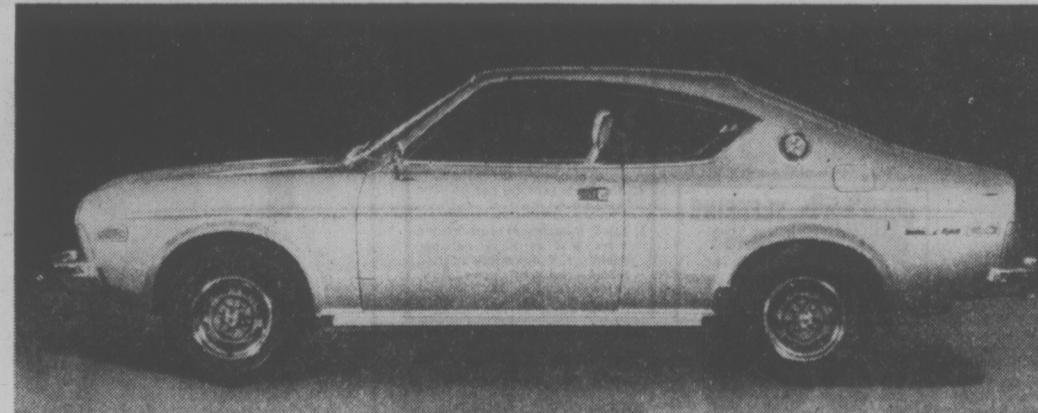

So what does this prove? Well, for one thing, our competition is well read and know what they're up against. Read what Car & Driver said about the RX-4: "You simply can't buy such a combination of performance and finely cultivated manners anywhere else."

Road & Track said the RX-4 was "... an attractive alternative to large, heavy domestic cars with big V-8 engines, in a relatively compact car that's not nearly so thirsty."

Road Test said, "All Mazdas perform, but the RX-4 is definitely the performingest of them all."

And when you consider that only Rolls Royce can match our 50,000 mile/3 year engine warranty* you get some idea of the class the Mazda Rotary RX-4 is in.

For your information we've prepared a chart with our vital statistics. Use it to compare the RX-4 to the other luxury imports. We think you'll agree with Car & Driver, which summed up the Mazda Rotary RX-4 rather nicely: "We can only pity the competition."

Wilson Switches Protested

LONDON (Reuter) — Judith Hart protested in Parliament Wednesday after being dismissed from the Labor government cabinet by British Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

Her overseas aid post went to right winger Reg Prentice, formerly education minister.

As angry members of Labor's powerful left wing roared their support, Hart, 31, who had won respect in her job as overseas development minister, said:

"I fear we are witnessing the first dangerous stages of what could prove to be an historic catastrophe for the Labor party and movement."

Wilson, tightening his authority as he faces Britain's economic crisis, also switched controversial left-winger Anthony Benn to energy minister from his key post as industry minister.

Both Hart and Benn were vigorous anti-marketeers in the campaign leading up to last week's referendum on whether Britain should stay in the European Common Market.

Benn was replaced as industry minister by former energy minister Eric Varley, also an anti-marketeer in the referendum campaign.

The prime minister was accused by many leftists of bowing to big business by moving Benn from the industry post where he has been attacked constantly by private businessmen.

To a packed House of Commons, Hart said if the government sought to solve economic problems by capitalist methods and abandoned socialist policies, she said, "it will fail to resolve the economic crisis and betray the Labor movement."

Before The Judge

Bail was set at $5,000 in Victoria provincial court Wednesday for a 26-year-old man charged with kidnapping two young women in separate incidents in Esquimalt and Victoria early Tuesday morning.

Leonard George Doward, of 600 Galano Crescent, had been remanded Tuesday for psychiatric assessment but no evidence of mental disorder was found.

He was also charged with possession of an offensive weapon, a knife and impaired driving.

The no-publication order, granted by Judge William Ostler Tuesday at defence lawyer Brian Smith's request, remained in effect.

Doward was remanded to June 17 for election and plea.

The kidnapping charge alleges Doward forcibly seized Sharon Marie Lowe, 23, of 827 Esquimalt Road, and Susan Minerva Longley, 19, of the Victoria area.

The incident involving Miss Lowe occurred in the 800-block Esquimalt Rd. at about 12:45 a.m., while that involving Miss Longley happened in the 1300-block Broad at 2:10 a.m.

Police said neither woman was injured.

Prosecutor Nick Lang, defence lawyer Rodney Taylor, the judge and 13 Crown witnesses were assembled in provincial trial court for Lawrence Stanley Shisler's preliminary hearing when Shisler stood up to say he had decided to dismiss Taylor and retain Douglas Christie as his lawyer.

Shisler, 30, of 3390 Veteran, charged with robbery in a $2,732 holdup April 24 at the Royal Bank, Hillside and Quadra, gave no reasons for dismissing Taylor.

Shisler will appear again with his new counsel to fix another day for preliminary hearing.

Outside the court, Lang said he felt Shisler's decision to change counsel "at the 11th hour" was just a means to delay trial.

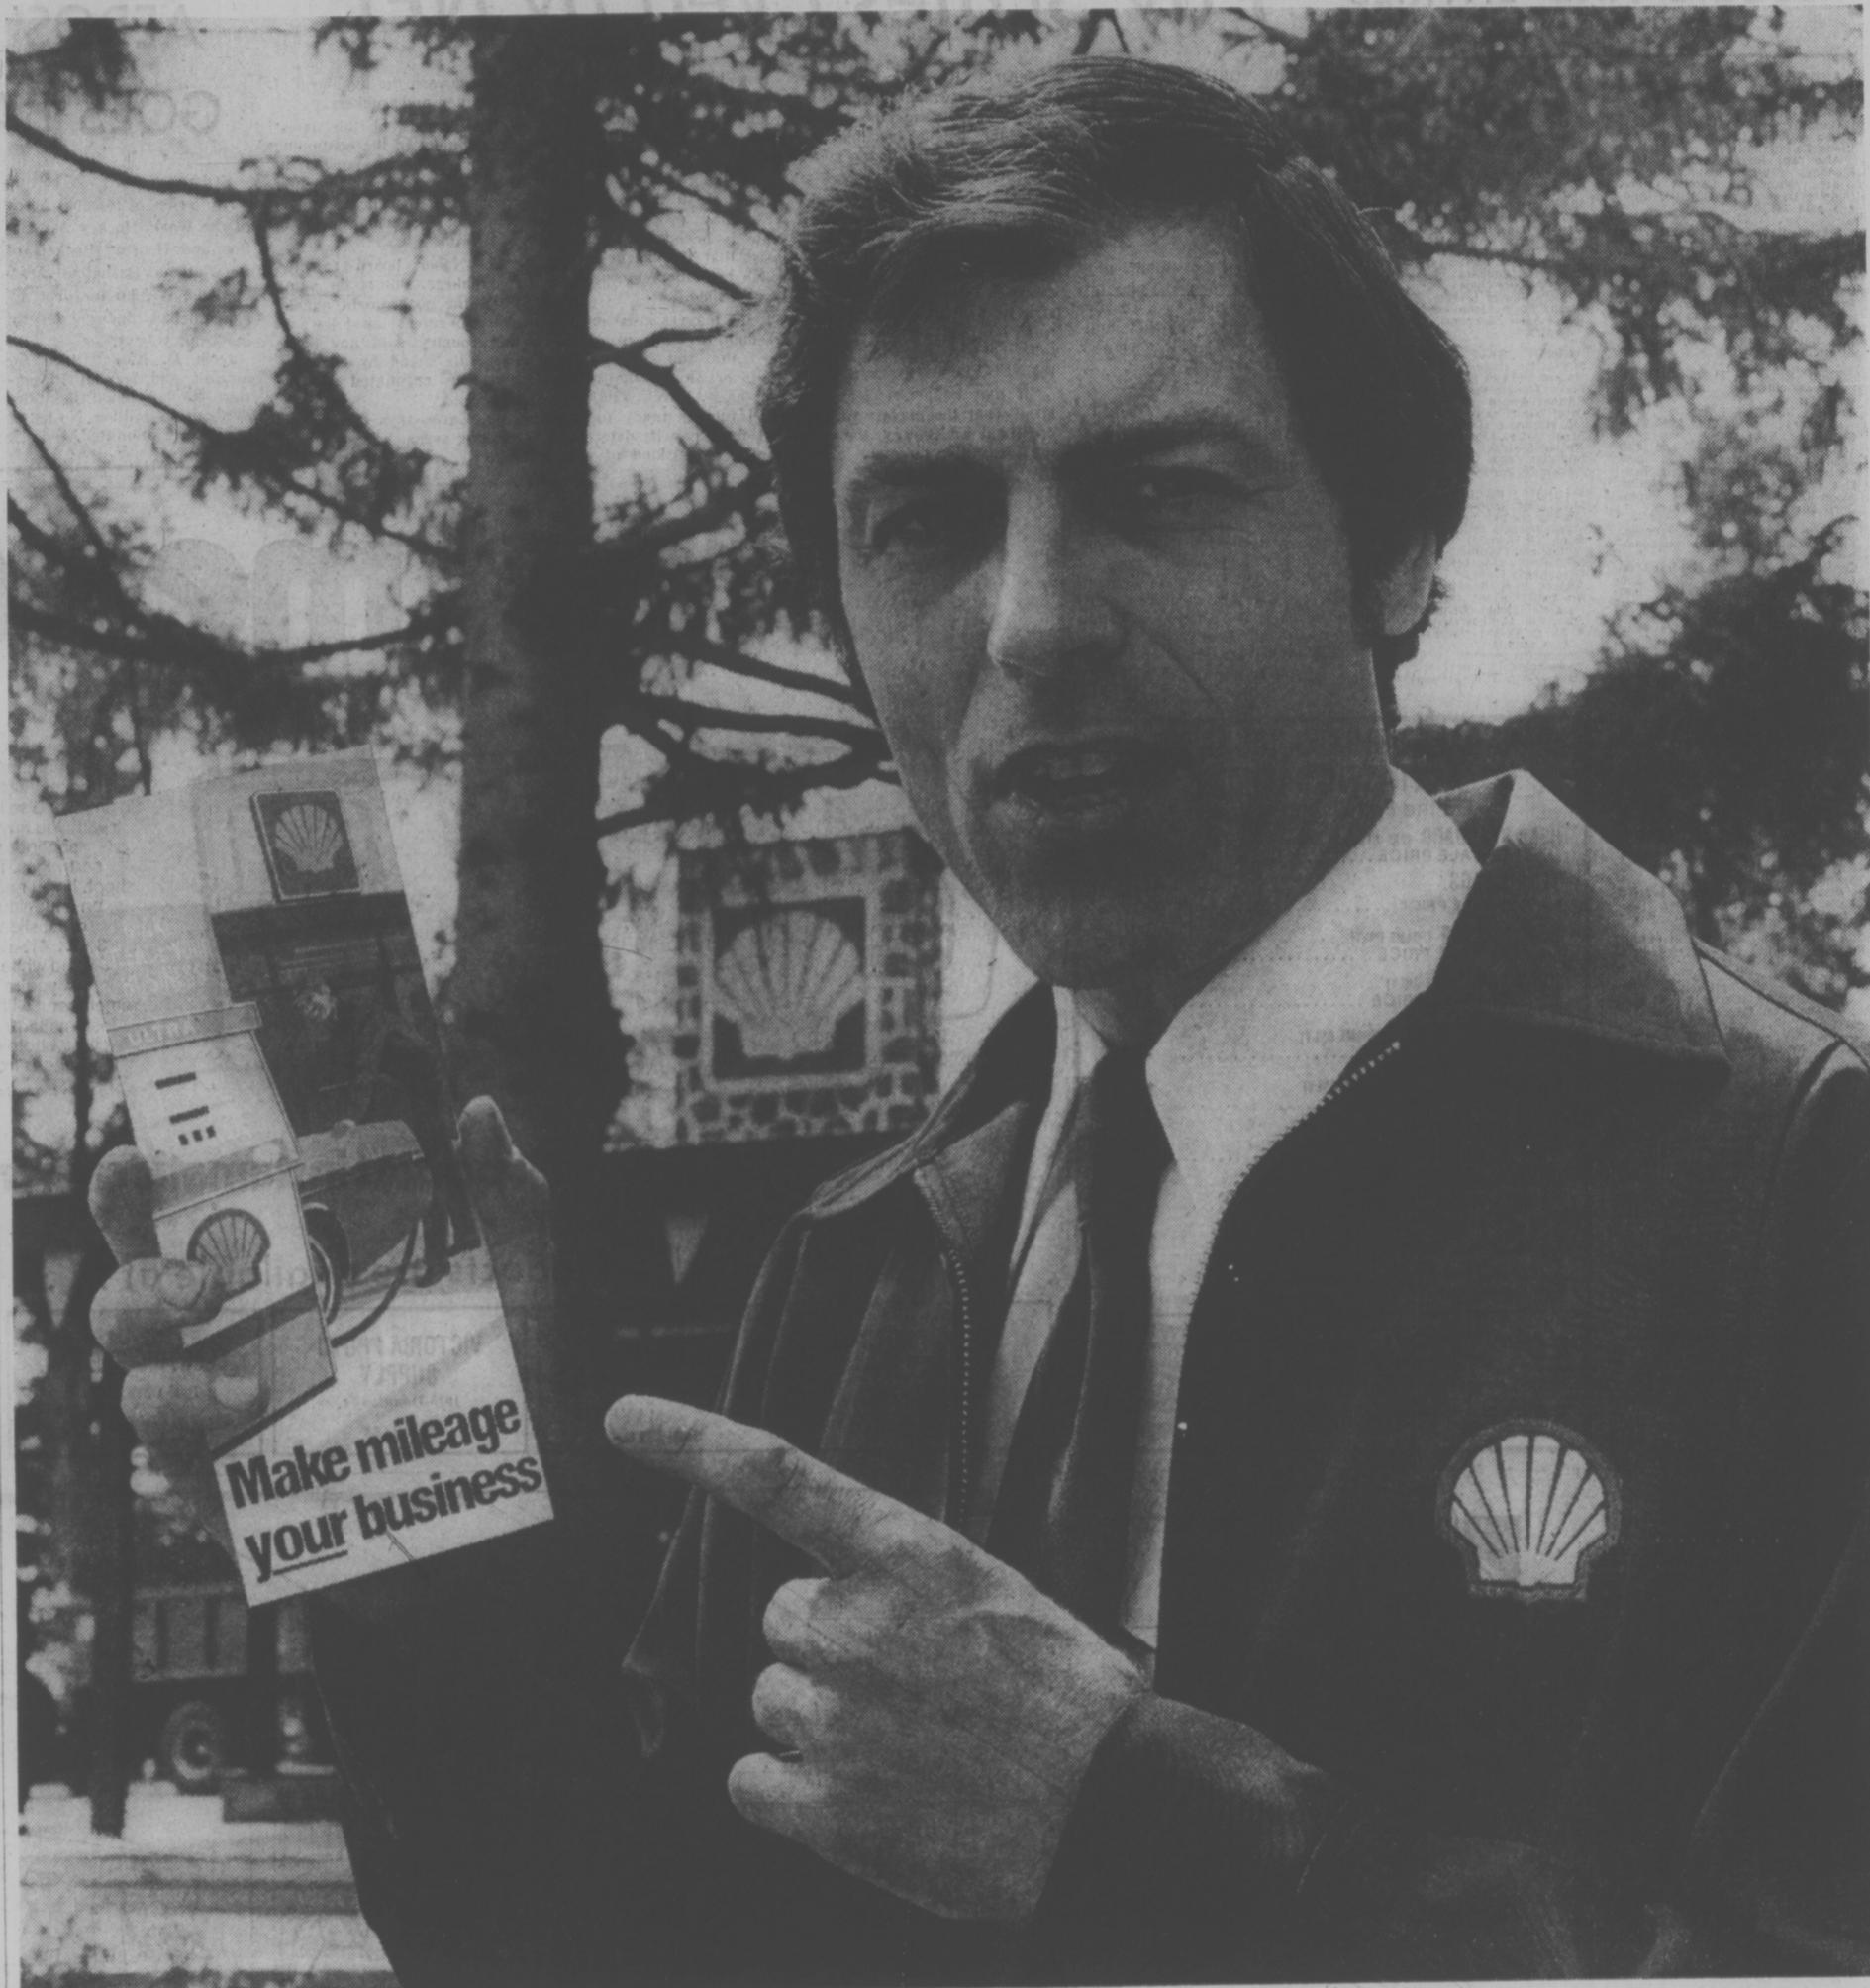

Shisler remains in custody. His parole was revoked as a result of the robbery charge.

The preliminary hearing of a two-count murder charge against a 20-year-old serviceman, which began Tuesday and continued Wednesday, will be completed July 18.

Larry Lovell was charged March 4 with two counts of murder punishable by life imprisonment in connection with the stabbing deaths of Jane Plume, 51, of 1353 Munro, and Florence Bevan, 62, of 1324 Lyall, Sept. 6, 1974 at Ray's Food Market, 1325 Esquimalt.

The no-publication order, issued at the start of the hearing at defence lawyer Harry Rankin's request, remains in effect.

Dogs Flush Rape Suspect After Home Terrorized

HAMILTON (CP) — A two-hour siege in Hamilton's Red Hill Creek Valley ended Wednesday when police dogs flushed out a heavily-armed man after a west-end home had been terrorized by a gunman and one man stabbed, a woman raped and two persons apparently abducted.

A confused string of events began around 2 a.m. when a man carrying a .303-calibre rifle entered a home and began threatening the four adults and an infant inside.

"I'd never seen him before in my life, though I sort of knew the guy and girl he came in with," said 18-year-old Jim Thompson.

"He started firing and I just started running. All of us did. Anywhere we could get out of the house was raped."

Police allege a woman in the house was raped.

They said they believed the man and woman accompanying the gunman were forced to drive with him to a home in nearby Burlington, where the man without the gun — described as a hostage — was shot once in the left leg and

Child-Care Workers Strike Vote

Unionized employees at the labor-troubled Pacific Centre for Human Development took a strike vote Tuesday afternoon.

A union spokesman said the results of the vote, by Local 1818 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, will not be released until Monday.

The union, which represents about 20 child care workers, housekeepers, cooks and maintenance staff at the Pear Road Centre in Metcalf, has been negotiating for a first contract since March with centre owner Dr. Charles Gregory.

The union members are seeking parity with provincial government employees doing similar jobs. The centre is funded primarily by the provincial department of human resources.

A union spokesman said a contract was agreed to by both sides at a meeting June 2 and was ratified by the union membership June 5.

Later on June 5, the union was informed, the spokesman said, that the centre could not meet the terms of the contract. The decision was then made to take a strike vote.

stabbed in a forearm before the car again drove off with the three.

Attendant Brian Earle at an all-night service station said a car drove up in the early hours and one man got out to gas a car while another, apparently hurt, asked for a telephone to call police.

"All of a sudden," Earle said, "the driver pulled a rifle and started shouting over to the guy, ordering him into the car."

"The guy ducked behind a car on the lot ... and the next thing I knew, the other guy drove off with the girl and a passing police cruiser gave chase.

The driver jumped out of the car near Red Hill Creek Valley, leaving the girl behind, and disappeared in darkness.

Thirty policemen surrounded the valley; dogs were called in, and at daybreak detectives armed with shotguns entered the ravine with two dogs.

Hamilton-Wentworth regional police later charged Joseph Zienna, 25, of no fixed address, with attempted murder, attempted robbery, rape, buggery, gross indecency and possession of a dangerous weapon.

Home Plan Coming

OTTAWA (CP) — A homeownership warranty plan probably will be in effect before the end of this year. Urban Affairs Minister Barney Dawson said Wednesday in the Commons.

He told Ian Watson (Laprairie) that negotiations to set up such a plan are going well.

The plan to guarantee construction standards would be administered by representatives from federal and provincial governments, the housing industry and consumer groups.

Sidney Handelman, Ontario consumer and commercial relations minister, said this week that the provincial government has "pretty well given up" on the federal plan and now is developing a provincial plan.

Sen. David Walker (PC-Ontario) complained that the bank will concentrate on short-term loans to businesses with branches only in the major cities. It would not seek public deposits, but would rather purchase term deposits on the money markets.

No Clemency For Doctor

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and Justice Minister Otto Lang appeared Wednesday to reject any federal initiative for clemency in the case of imprisoned abortionist Henry Morgentaler.

Trudeau said in the commons the case is before the Quebec justice department and the province, not Ottawa, must decide what will be done.

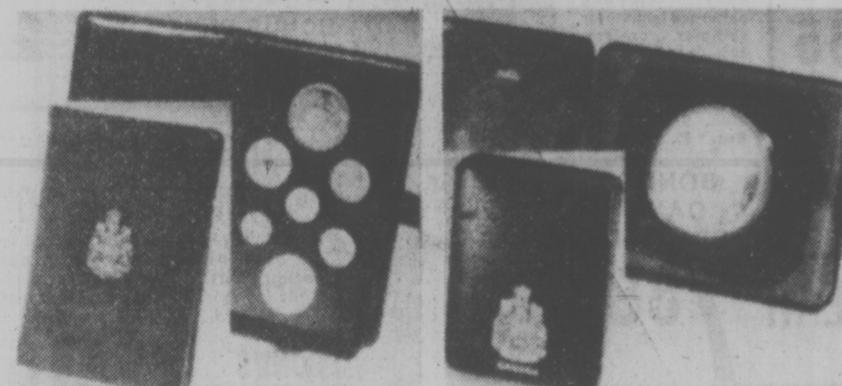

Lang said he will not interfere because Quebec appears to be following the law in dealing with the 52-year-old Montreal doctor.

Easy Shortcake For Berries

By MARY MOORE

This is a fancy version of strawberry shortcake. It will serve 10 to 12. It was so popular that my guests happily took leftover samples home for midnight snacking.

I know some readers who will be glad to have the basic cake recipe for this it is simply a one-egg cake that they can use for many other purposes.

STRAWBERRY CREAM CAKE

(serves 10 to 12)

Cake (one egg):
½ c. (6 tbsp.) shortening
1½ c. granulated sugar
1 large egg
1% c. sifted all-purpose flour (2 c. less 2 tbsp.)
1½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
½ c. milk
1 c. vanilla
Filling and topping:
1 c. sugar

½ c. flour
1 tsp. salt
1½ c. milk
1¼ c. mashed fresh strawberries
2 large eggs
½ pt. whipping (32 per cent) cream
Red food coloring
About 16 large strawberries halved

To make the cake cream together the shortening and sugar, then add egg and beat until light. Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder and salt and fold alternately in thirds into the creamed mixture with the milk and vanilla.

Turn into two 8-inch layer cake tins which have been lined on bottoms with buttered wax paper. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 30 to 35 minutes. Turn out on cake racks, peel off wax paper and cool.

To make filling and topping mix together well in a large pot the sugar, flour and salt then stir in the milk and mashed strawberries and cook stirring until thick.

In a small bowl beat eggs a little, stir some of the hot mixture into them and return it to pot and stir 1 minute. Remove from heat and cool. Color pink with about 20 drops red food coloring. Whip cream Cut the two layers of cake each in half to make four layers. Put one on fancy cake plate. Cover with one-quarter of filling. Repeat twice. To remaining quarter of filling add reserved whipped cream and pile this on top. You may want to spread it on sides too but I and my guests thought the bare layers, showing filling between, were attractive.

Decorate top centre with 1 huckleberry point up. Surround it with a flower-like arrangement of about 8 strawberry halves points out. Decorate bottom edge of cake with a border of big strawberry halves.

This cake is beautiful and popular but should not be assembled any earlier than 2 hours in advance of serving time.

MEDIEVAL PARSLEY BREAD

2 packages active dry yeast
2 cups warm water
6 tablespoons honey
6 to 7 cups unbleached white hard wheat bread flour or Hecker's brand unbleached white flour.
1-2-3 tablespoons coarse salt such as sea salt or kosher salt
½ cup melted butter or oil
4 eggs
1 teaspoon dried rosemary
1 teaspoon dried basil
½ cup chopped fresh parsley
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
Green food coloring, optional.

1. Sprinkle the yeast on one-half cup of the warm water in a mixing bowl. Stir in the honey. Let stand five minutes.

2. Add the remaining water and about two and one-half to three cups of flour. Beat with a wooden spoon about 200 strokes. Cover with a damp cloth, put in a warm place and let rise 30 to 45 minutes or until doubled in bulk.

3. Punch the dough down, beat in the salt, melted butter and three eggs. Crush the rosemary and basil in a mortar. Add the parsley and make a paste. Add the cinnamon and blend. Add the herb mixture to the dough and knead to blend well. Beat in the remaining flour, using a spoon.

4. Place the dough in a greased bowl and cover with a damp towel or plastic wrap. Let rise in a warm place until doubled in bulk, about 50 minutes.

5. Punch the dough down, cover and let rise again until doubled in bulk, about 30 minutes.

6. Punch the dough down, turn it onto a lightly floured surface and let stand five minutes. Shape the dough into one or two free-form turban-like curls or twists. Place on a buttered baking sheet. Cover lightly with a towel and let rise in a warm place until doubled in bulk, about 25 minutes.

7. Meanwhile, preheat the oven to 375 degrees. Brush the loaf or loaves with the remaining egg lightly beaten. Bake about 50 minutes or until nicely browned and the loaf sounds hollow when tapped on the top with the knuckles. Transfer to a rack and let cool.

Yield: Ten to 12 servings.

Health Menu Amended

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians have only a few months left before learning once again that their diets may not be so nutritious, after all.

In September an amended version of the federal health department's Canadian food guide, a menu for healthy eating, will be available to those concerned about what they eat.

The new guide is aimed at alleviating nutrition problems discovered by the 1973 Nutrition Canada study, which found that 20 per cent of Canadians were poorly fed while more than half were either overweight or lacking nutrients in their diet.

The emphasis in the amended guide will be on milk, fresh fruit, vegetables and cereals to clear up the calcium, iron and vitamin deficiencies found in the study.

"The guide won't give precise amounts of food that should be eaten, so it's possible to read the food guide and still eat too much," said Dr. Keith Murray, director of the health department's nutrition bureau.

Recommendations of a subcommittee on diet and cardiovascular disease will be submitted to a federal-provincial nutrition committee this summer and included in the guide, Dr. Murray said.

It is expected that the new edition will recommend diets that minimize the possibilities of cardiovascular disease.

Dieting During Pregnancy Risky

QUESTION: Will strict dieting during my pregnancy affect my future child's learning ability?

ANSWER: The human brain reaches its maximum rate of growth before and immediately after birth. Evidence exists to show that if a woman is under nourished during her pregnancy, the normal development patterns in the fetal brain could be disturbed which then could possibly affect learning ability in after life.

QUESTION: My aunt is in a nursing home for the elderly. I feel she is not being properly fed — what can she or I do about this?

ANSWER: Research in-

ANSWER: A complaint must be submitted in writing to your local health unit. This will be followed by an inspection of the home. Homes are required to follow a posted menu, and the food served must be nutritionally adequate.

QUESTION: In order to avoid tooth decay, is it better to eat honey rather than sugar?

ANSWER: Research indicates that there is no significant difference between the caries producing potential of honey, sucrose (sugar), and molasses. All of these will readily support the growth of bacteria which cause tooth decay.

1 tbsp. cucumber seeds and pulp, mashed.
1 (3 1/2 oz.) tin salmon, drained.
2 tbsp. fine bread crumbs.
1 tbsp. lemon juice.
1 green onion, chopped.
2 tsp. mayonnaise.
Dash pepper.
2 tbsp. cheddar cheese, grated.
With tines of fork, score cu-mber. Split cucumber lengthwise, remove seeds and pulp. Rub hollow with salt. In small bowl combine 1 tbsp. salmon, bread crumbs, lemon juice, green onion, mayonnaise and pepper. Mix well. Pipe mixture into cucumber shells. Top with cheddar cheese. Broil 3 inches from heat 5 to 7 minutes or until mixture is warm through and cheese has melted. Boats may be served whole, halved, or cut in chunks. This recipe will stuff one medium-size cucumber. It can be doubled, if desired.

KOLDOMER

Makes 22 to 24 rolls.
1 large cabbage
1 teaspoon salt
3/4 pound ground beef
3/4 pound ground pork
1/2 cup cooked rice
1 egg
1/2 cup milk
Salt and Pepper
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons brown sugar
1/4 cup beef broth
1 cup light cream
2 tablespoons flour

Cover cabbage with boiling water. Add salt and cook, uncovered, until tender, 15 to 20 minutes. Drain well; cool; remove leaves from core carefully. Mix together beef, pork, rice, egg, milk, salt and pepper.

When leaves are cool, fill with meat mixture. Fold sides of leaves in to centre and then roll up. Melt butter in shallow baking dish. Roll leaves in melted butter and lay flap side down in dish.

Sprinkle with brown sugar; add broth. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 to 50 minutes, basting occasionally. Remove rolls from baking dish. Blend flour with a little cream to smooth paste. Add remaining cream and stir into liquid in baking pan, mixing well. Return rolls to dish; spoon over sauce and bake for 10 minutes longer.

After I grew up I visited those spots on the Niagara Peninsula and found them monumented, plaque and well preserved in park settings, for the Canadian people.

Immediately my phone started to ring. My mail increased. I was stopped on the street while people argued the pros and cons. And I soon discovered there were many who wished to retain the old version, despite its overload of "stand on guard for thee."

Some who called me on the phone refused to give their names. To these I listened but did not keep a record of their conversations.

Mrs. L. Williams of Sidney also says the new version for O Canada leaves her cold.

She writes: "The reason I have never used the new words to O Canada is that I do not like them at all. We were never asked if we would accept them, the change was just announced one day."

"Many other people feel the same way. If so, it could be a long time until the words are accepted as changed."

She adds that she is 27 years old "and will sing them

I'd like to share them all with you but space will not permit. So, I've picked out three letters that might interest you and lead you to either sticking with the old version, learning the new words, or getting behind a movement to adopt an entirely different song as our Canadian anthem."

Another letter from a woman who requested if I used it that she remain anonymous, includes quite different arguments.

She expresses surprise that my recent concern with Canada's national anthem is limited to the repetition of the "we stand on guards."

Her concern, she writes "is that the present form explicitly excludes two groups: naturalized immigrants (not native born) and women (not sons)."

The change, she says also alienates a third group, namely those who will find a plea to God hypercritical or even offensive."

She does acknowledge that perhaps it is not possible to make a national anthem all-encompassing and meaningful to every citizen."

However, her letter concludes "as a female, immigrant atheist, I would rather 'stand on guard' for endless stanzas than mouth words which cannot convey the true patriot love I would like to express."

In concluding this column, let me add my own little piece. I attended the 12th annual convocation of University of Victoria at the end of May and there the Order of Proceedings included O Canada.

The anthem, with the new words, was printed in the official program and the entire audience stood to join in its singing, led by a strong voice from the platform that left no doubt the new version was being used.

I like this version. I sang it with pride and with feeling. And, while I also love The Maple Leaf Forever, I think O Canada, as it is now, should remain our national anthem.

Ideas on the Anthem

In the many years I've been writing this column, the reactions of my readers have remained a never ending surprise.

The way they accept what I have been sure would bring some sort of retort and, on the other hand, the quick response that comes, on occasions, from what I have thought to be a particularly benign presentation.

Take, for instance, the couple of columns I wrote recently on the changes of words in O Canada.

Those changes were made several years ago. At the time, they were given a lot of space in our newspapers. Schools received copies of the new version. Everyone knew about it but few bothered to learn the new words or to even suggest people should sing them.

I pointed this out and hinted the time had come—if it was not long overdue—for everyone to make an effort to accept the new words and to make them a fact.

Immediately my phone started to ring. My mail increased. I was stopped on the street while people argued the pros and cons. And I soon discovered there were many who wished to retain the old version, despite its overload of "stand on guard for thee."

Some who called me on the phone refused to give their names. To these I listened but did not keep a record of their conversations.

Passed-Up Proposal

things settle down, why don't you come as my houseguest for a long weekend?" He was only 37 and in the best of health. I am 47.

A business associate and good friend of his flew in for the funeral, but I was in such a state of shock I can scarcely remember seeing him.

Later, I received a lovely letter from him expressing his sorrow. He wrote: "When the closest he came to a romantic gesture was saying, 'If I were 20 years younger I'd ask you to marry me.' Abby, I'd marry him in a minute, anyway.

It's been seven months since my husband's death. Do you think this man was serious? Was that a proposal? If so, how can I get him to repeat it? —WILLING.

DEAR WILLING: You missed the boat. You should have told him (very quickly) that the age difference didn't matter. And if that was indeed a proposal, you'll hear from him again.

DEAR ABBY: Please say a word about teenage boys who buy their girl friends expensive, extravagant gifts.

Our daughter received a stereo player from her boyfriend and now she feels obligated to date him exclusively even though she would like to date others. She's 17 and he's 18.

It isn't fair to her boyfriend, either, since he can't possibly know whether she dates him because she wants to or because she feels she has to.

Please stress how important it is for young people to keep their gifts inexpensive and impersonal. —CONCERNED MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: I'll say a word. And the word is "No" to extravagant gifts between teenagers. Your daughter's experience is not unique.

DEAR ABBY: I have recently become engaged to a divorcee. She has no love for her ex-husband, but she adores his mother.

She claims that a woman can divorce her husband, but her in-laws are forever; and she intends to remain friendly with her "mother-in-law" as long as she lives.

This is all right with me, but when I asked her what my mother would be to her, she said, "She will also be my mother-in-law."

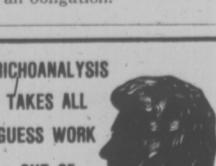

Is this correct?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: No. Technically, a person is entitled to only one mother-in-law at a time, and even though it's refreshing to hear about a woman who adores her ex-husband's mother so much that nothing can destroy that friendship, your mother will be your wife's mother-in-law. And her former mother-in-law will no longer be related to her.

Little Time Saving in Rice Mixes

By JEAN HEWITT

NEW YORK (NYT) — Several flavored rice mixtures have appeared on grocery shelves, but, with some exceptions, the saving in time is minimal and generally there is the same number of utensils to wash, whether starting from scratch or with a mix.

And there are these factors to consider: As with other convenience foods, rice mixes are more expensive than the same dishes made from scratch, and preservatives are added to the mixes to extend their shelf life.

The price of rice is still high — 40 to 50 cents a pound, down slightly from a high of 51 cents last June — but homemade flavored rice concoctions can be made for 5 to 20 cents less per serving than comparable dishes made from packaged mixes.

Test kitchens show that most-from-scratch, flavored rice dishes, including Spanish and Italian, beef, chicken and long grain and wild rice, were preferred for their appearance, texture and flavor over their reconstituted counterparts.

All the flavored mixes required the addition of one to two tablespoons of butter or margarine. And, in the case of three out of four Spanish and Italian rice mixes, canned tomatoes or tomato sauce had to be added, greatly increasing the cost per serving.

And the "just add tomatoes" instruction on the packages was not in the largest type.

Many of the dry mixes contained preservatives, hydrolyzed protein and artificial flavorings and monosodium glutamate, according to lists of ingredients on the boxes.

The saving in preparation time for convenience mixes was minimal except for "minute" brands, which were ready in about 12 minutes, or half the time required for the others.

Here are start-from-scratch recipes for simple, inexpensive, seasoned rice mixtures:

SPANISH RICE

2 tablespoons butter or oil.
½ cup finely chopped onion.
1 clove garlic, finely chopped.

½ cup long grain rice.
1 rib celery, chopped.
2 cups beef broth, made with bouillon cubes.

Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste.

1. Heat the butter in a skillet and cook the onion until golden and tender. Add the garlic and rice and cook three minutes longer, stirring often.

2. Add the remaining ingredients, bring to a boil, cover and simmer 15 minutes or until the liquid has been absorbed.

Yield: Four servings (about ½-cup each) for 70 cents.

CHICKEN FLAVORED RICE

2 tablespoons chicken fat (skimmed from chicken soup or stewing chicken) or butter.

1 rib celery, chopped.
½ cup finely broken vermicelli.

½ cup long grain rice.
1 clove garlic, finely chopped.

3 tablespoons chopped Parsley.

1 teaspoon turmeric.

2 cups chicken broth made from bouillon cubes.

Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste.

1. Heat the butter or oil in a skillet and cook the onion until golden and tender. Add the garlic and rice and cook five minutes longer, stirring occasionally.

2. Add the remaining ingredients, bring to a boil, cover and simmer 15 minutes or until all the liquid has been absorbed.

Yield: Four servings (about ½-cup each) for 70 cents.

LONG GRAIN AND WILD RICE

2 tablespoons butter.
½ cup chopped onion.

Mix mustard with sugar and vinegar; add oil slowly, beating as you add. Stir in chopped dill and serve with gravlax. Swedish mustard will make a much sweeter sauce.

MUSTARD SAUCE

2 tablespoons Dijon mustard.

1 tablespoon sugar.

2 tablespoons vinegar.

6 tablespoons oil.

1 heaping tablespoon chopped dill.

Mix mustard with sugar and vinegar; add oil slowly, beating as you add. Stir in chopped dill and serve with gravlax. Swedish mustard will make a much sweeter sauce.

GRAVLAX

2 pounds centre cut fresh salmon.

1 large bunch dill, coarsely cut.

1 tablespoon sugar.

1 tablespoon salt.

1-3 tablespoons coarsely ground black pepper.

Split piece into two halves, remove all the bones from the fish. Wash and wipe skin. Combine the sugar, salt and pepper and sprinkle over halves of flesh. Sprinkle on some of the dill and place two salmon halves, flesh side together, on top of remaining dill. Place in enamel or glass container and cover tightly with plastic wrap. Place brick or other heavy weight on top of salmon and refrigerate for 3 to 4 days, turning salmon twice a day. Remove the dill and scrape off seasonings. Slice salmon thinly on a bias and garnish with fresh dill and lemon. Serve with mustard sauce.

Marinated Salmon

Honey Bran Muffins

1 egg
1 ¼ cups flour
1 cup bran
½ cup honey
½ tsp. salt
3 tsp. B.P.
2-3 cup milk
¼ cup oil
1 tsp. cinnamon
Heat oven to 400 degrees and grease 12 muffin tins.

Beat egg, honey, milk and oil until light and creamy. Add bran and stand for 10 minutes. Sift remaining ingredients into mixture and stir just enough to blend. Batter should still be lumpy. Bake for 20-25 minutes.

NORTH PENDER ISLAND

Residents of the Wallace Point area on North Pender Island will have their first telephone service next month following completion of an underwater cable-laying project across Bedwell Harbour.

Bert Parker, Victoria's B.C.

Tel. customer service manager, says the 3,500-foot submarine cable was laid across Bedwell Harbour from Bedwell Bay to Wallace Point from a special cable-laying ship — Georgia Transporter — and anchored to channel bottom by skin divers.

Storyteller Clark Honored

TORONTO — Gregory Clark, one of Canada's best known storytellers, authors and reporters, received today an honorary Doctor of Letters degree from the University of Toronto where 65 years ago he had been an undergraduate.

The 82-year-old Clark received his honorary degree from university chancellor Eva MacDonald after an introduction by Prof. C. T. Bissell at the beginning of the convocation exercise.

He was described by Prof. Bissell as "a cheerful realist, who tells us in many seductive ways that at the heart of things are sentiment, beauty and laughter."

"Gregory Clark is the Canadian journalist of our time," he added.

PORT SAID, Egypt — Israeli peace crusader Abe Nathan is being held for interrogation after he tried to sail his "Peace Ship" through the Suez Canal, informed sources said Wednesday.

The sources said Nathan and his floating radio station, a 110-ton converted Dutch coastal vessel manned by a 14-man crew of Canadians, Australian, French and German nationals, were probably taken to the Mediterranean port city of Alexandria.

Nathan had announced plans to sail through the canal

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia — Deposed Emperor Haile Selassie, 82, is back in forced palace confinement following a successful prostate gland operation, the military government said Wednesday.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. — A 23-year-old summer camp worker from Toronto today began a 4,500-mile across Canada to raise money for handicapped children.

David Kirchner began the walk from here this morning and said he hopes to be in Victoria in less than six months.

MAMI — As Eastern Airlines' new president, former astronaut Frank Borman has a tough job — persuading the airline's 32,000 employees to accept pay cuts ranging from 3 to 8 per cent.

Under Borman's signature, letters went to each employee proposing the salary reductions to take effect July 1 for a period of 18 months. But he said the cut "will not be adopted unless it is approved by the majority of our people."

LONDON — Capt. Mark Phillips, Queen Elizabeth's son-in-law, narrowly escaped death 12 days ago when a race car he was driving spun out of control at 100 miles an hour, the Daily Express newspaper said today.

The incident took place at Silverstone race course near London where the 26-year-old Phillips and his wife, Princess Anne, were on a private visit with former world driving champion Jackie Stewart.

The Express said Phillips borrowed a modified stock car from a race driver and took it onto the track. He spun out at a particularly difficult corner while going 100 mph.

"Anne watched helplessly as the car, almost rolling over, disappeared in a shower of dust and stones before thudding into the protective barrier," the newspaper said.

Phillips emerged unharmed and the car was not badly damaged.

Snakes, Monkeys Tour Menu

CHICAGO (UPI) — Three young men who went to Ecuador in search of a gold miner's paradise but instead found themselves stranded in the jungle, eating monkeys and snakes for 25 days, have filed suit against the company they say coaxed them into the trip.

The trip ended when a flash flood wiped out the mining campsite and the three were led to safety by local Indians.

DELAY SUGGESTED FOR SUSPENSIONS

EDMONTON (CP) — A bill to "equalize the punishment" faced by a motorist receiving his first impaired driving conviction was proposed in the legislature Wednesday by Gordon Taylor (Ind. — Drumheller).

His private members bill would allow the starting date for the driver's licence suspension to be delayed for up to a year so the suspension doesn't hit the individual at the time he needs his licence the most.

The measure stands little chance of approval.

SASKATOON (CP) — A new kind of Klondike Fever apparently hit some on the University of Saskatchewan campus recently.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Seven candidates are officially entered in the race for two by-elections June 25 to fill vacancies in the Manitoba legislature.

When official nominations closed Wednesday, eight persons had filed but in one case an error was discovered in the papers and his candidacy was not allowed.

Crescentwood returning officer A. W. Richards said William Hawryluk, 48, of Winnipeg, had filed papers to run in Crescentwood under the banner of a group called the Western Democracy Party.

But, Richards said, only 44 of the 70-plus signatures on the papers were eligible voters in the riding. Signatures of at least 50 eligible voters must be obtained.

Indians Told to Take Over

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Larry Wight, the British Columbia director of the department of Indian affairs, told Interior B.C. Indian bands Tuesday they can assume any of the present powers of the department.

He also told the meeting of the Thompson River Indian Council that Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan has instructed him to bring the Indians' list of demands to Ottawa in preparation for complete withdrawal of the department offices in Kamloops, which was closed May 1.

Offices in Vernon, Nanaimo, Williams Lake and Bella Coola also have been closed recently.

Wight told the council that senior civil servants were shocked when the deputy minister of Indian affairs told them the Indians themselves could take over the department work almost immediately without major problems.

"Frankly, I agree with them (the Indians)," said Wight. "I've been here for four years and any progress I've seen has been made by the Indians, not the department."

Wight said the Indian bands are free to discuss any specific programs the bands wish to keep and possibly the band could be paid on a per-capita basis for those discontinued.

The cost of DIA administration would be included in the payments, he said.

BARRETT SAYS HE IS SURE TV CAN TRIGGER VIOLENCE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Dave Barrett said Wednesday he is sure that in some people violent incidents "can be triggered by what they see on TV."

Barrett told 1,000 delegates to the Child Welfare League of America he ordered a psychiatric examination for a 13-year-old boy who shot a downtown store maintenance man last year after stealing rifles and ammunition from the store. He said the boy told the psychiatrist he had seen a similar incident on television.

The boy, who remains unidentified under Canadian law, has been sent to a secure psychiatric centre for long-term treatment.

Barrett appealed to the delegates to investigate the effects of violence on television and consider what action should be taken. He said he was in a quandary about the situation because, as a civil libertarian, he is against censorship.

The premier, a former social worker, said there is a danger that young people will grow up to expect violence in other people "and in some cities of North America we have reached that stage."

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The fish and wildlife branch Wednesday was investigating the mauling of Theodore Watchuk and Neil Lenoble, both of Mackenzie, by a bear June 6 when the two were prospecting about 80 miles north of here.

SURREY (CP) — Roger Stephan Bourgeois, 23, of Surrey was sentenced to five years in jail Tuesday after being found guilty of the rape of a 17-year-old girl June 22, 1974.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Kay Isaris, 45, suffered a broken ankle Wednesday when a female purse snatcher grabbed her purse containing $15 and shoved her to the ground.

NANAIMO (CP) — The Free Press published Wednesday for the first time in five weeks, becoming the fourth Thomson-owned British Columbia daily newspaper to publish without its striking printers or pressmen.

The paper was printed by management and non-union employees, and was distributed by regular newspaper carriers.

John Pifer, managing editor, said 11,000 copies were printed, identical to the circ-

lation before the Free Press was shut down.

Penticton Herald began publishing Monday on a three-times-a-week basis, joining two other Thomson newspapers, Kamloops Sentinel and Kelowna Courier, also publishing despite a dispute involving the Printing Pressmen's Union and the International Typographical Union.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Medical Centre has announced that Health Minister Dennis Cooke has approved $50,000 in planning funds to cover costs of a functional program for a proposed neurosciences unit at Vancouver General Hospital. The program will include diagnostic, laboratory and academic components.

SUPER TRACTION RADIAL

A NEW FIBERGLASS BELTED RADIAL FROM GULF

Gulf's new Super Traction Fiberglass Belted Radial offers you the remarkable features of other radial tires — at an economy price.

The "economy radial" is constructed of two belts of fiberglass over two polyester cord plies.

FEATURES:

- The new Super Traction Radial costs less than steel belted radials.
- It's strong — in fact, on a pound-for-pound basis, fiberglass tire cord is twice as strong as steel.
- The polyester/fiberglass radial design gives better mileage and longer tread life than bias or belted tires.
- Handling and traction with fiberglass radials is comparable to steel belted radials.
- Gulf's new Super Traction Radial will give an extremely comfortable ride, even at city speeds.
- 3/8" deep tread for maximum traction.
- Available from and warranted in proportion to tread wear, by Gulf stations across Canada. (There's no time or mileage limit to Gulf's tire warranty.)

Available where you see this Super Traction Radial sign.

CP Rail Leases New Ferry

VANCOUVER (CP) — CP Rail said Wednesday it has chartered the new $6.3 million ferry Incan St. Laurent for summer service between New Westminster and Whittier, Alaska.

The 385-foot vessel, built by Burrard Dry Dock Ltd. of Vancouver, will supplement the regular service between the two ports provided by the 520-foot railway car ferry Alaska, which is operated by the Alaska Trainship Corp., of Seattle. The Alaska moves railway cars for United States carriers.

The trainship Alaska cannot carry directly between the metropolitan U.S. and Alaska because it has Liberian registry and is barred from engaging in U.S. coastal traffic. U.S. cars are delivered to New Westminster of an international routing to Alaska.

B. D. Margerets, general manager of CP Rail's coastal marine operations, said because of the extra business generated by construction of a trans-Alaska oil pipeline, CP Rail added Incan St. Laurent to the service for the summer. The ferry will be operated on behalf of Alaska Trainship Corp.

Summer Programs Offered By UVic for Boys, Girls

Two summer programs, stressing camping, outdoor skills and sports will be held in July at the University of Victoria for children between nine and 15.

A fifth summer camp will be held July 7-26 for boys and girls between 10 and 12 and there will be two sessions of a third annual summer sports school. One for boys and girls between nine and 11 will be held July 7-25 while another for the 13-15 years' age group will run from July 14 to July 25.

All three programs are being sponsored by the university's physical education division.

Included in the summer camp program will be day trips to nearby parks and beaches and a five-day live-in camp at Shawinigan Lake's St. Francis Xavier campsite.

Emphasis will be placed on canoeing, hiking, introductory rock climbing, recreational sports and other outdoor skills.

Registration will be restricted to 110 participants. The fee is $70.

The sports schools are designed to provide group participation in basketball, volleyball, gymnastics and soccer or field hockey for the 9-12-year-olds. The individual fee is $35.

The 13-15-year-olds will receive game experience and individual instruction in basketball and volleyball, for both boys and girls, and either grass hockey for girls or soccer for boys. The fee is $25.

Further details are available at 477-6911, local 800.

23-Cent Gas Tax Hike Slashed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. house voted Wednesday to cut a proposed gasoline tax increase from a possible 23 cents to only three cents a gallon, reducing its long-awaited energy bill to 10 additional cents depending on 1976 consumption.

Backers of the bill considered the additional 20 cents a key to the energy program. Democrats drew up as an alternative to President Ford's plan.

"I fear the consequences if we do tooth this bill and enact a toothless type of law," said Rep. Al Ullman, (R-Ore.), chief sponsor of the bill.

The vote was 345 to 2.

The house action left a three-cent-a-gallon increase in the federal tax effective next Jan. 1, but eliminated a further increase in early 1977 that could have meant up to 20 additional cents depending on 1976 consumption.

The bidding:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass
4 ♠ Pass 6 ♠ Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♦.

West's queen of clubs opening lead was won by dummy's ace, after which the five of clubs was ruffed immediately in the closed hand. Declarer next cashed the ace of trumps, and the bade news was revealed: East had a sure trump winner.

Next came the queen of hearts, after which the diamond ace was cashed. Then came the king of diamonds. If East trumped this lead, he would be end-played; if he returned a trump, dummy's ten would serve as an entry for the cashing of the ace and king of hearts. If, instead, East played back a heart, South would be able to discard his nine and ten of diamonds on the board's ace and king of hearts.

And if East, upon ruffing the diamond king, led a club, South would toss away the nine of diamonds as he ruffed the trick in dummy. In the ace of hearts he would then get rid of his diamond ten.

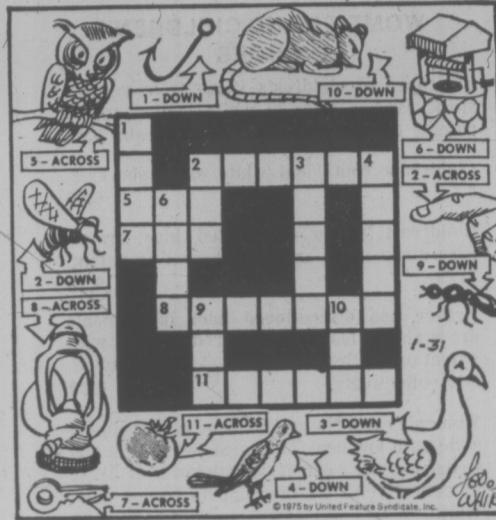

So East did not ruff the diamond king, discarding a club instead. Next came the queen of diamonds, and East tossed away another club. South then led a fourth diamond, which he ruffed in dummy. East overruffed, but South was now home safely, since his fifth diamond was a winner.

On superficial analysis, the hand does not appear to be a difficult one to play correctly. But just try playing the hand without the "little thing" of trumping the five of clubs at trick two. That is, at trick two lead a trump to your ace.

Then cash the queen of hearts (as was done), after which play the ace and king of diamonds. East will ruff the diamond king, and exit-by leading a club, which will be ruffed in a club.

It will now be impossible to cash dummy's two top hearts, and eventually a diamond trick will have to be lost.

Legal Aid Cost To Hit $100M

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The public cost of legal aid in Canada will double over the next three years to $100 million.

That's the prediction of Ian Cowie, director of the legal aid program of the federal department of justice.

Cowie, addressing the opening session of the second annual national conference on legal aid at the University of Victoria Wednesday night said since legal aid programs were begun in Canada four years ago costs have risen from $10 million to $46 million a year.

If the rate of increase is maintained the costs will top $100 million by 1978-79, he told an audience of more than 300. And that figure does not include funding under non-provincial legal aid programs.

He said the current per capita costs range from 43 cents in one province (which he didn't name) to $2.60 in Quebec for a national average of $2.05. By next year the per capita costs will exceed $3, he stated.

Earlier in the session, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald welcomed delegates who have come from across Canada to attend the three-day conference.

Macdonald described access to justice, the theme of the conference, as "one of the major social problems in the country."

He said up to now law has been "a rich man's instrument... access has been denied those who could never afford the expense of hiring a lawyer."

A lawyer himself, he warned "there is going to be civil disobedience and a rising crime wave unless we come down from our ivory towers to the people's level and make the law simpler for people to understand."

"If we want to make the law equal it is up to you people as technicians in legal aid

Accused Claims Methadone Habit

A 22-year-old mother of two told county court Wednesday she bought some heroin with the intention of breaking her methadone habit.

Darlene Mae Gardiner is accused jointly with Robert Harold English of possession of heroin for the purpose of trafficking Dec. 4. Since they were arrested and charged, they have married.

Gardiner, an admitted heroin addict for six years "off and on," said she went to the Red Lion beer parlor with English, met a man from Vancouver who was selling heroin here and "I thought I would see if he had any drugs or contacts 'where I could score a small amount to withdraw from the methadone habit.'

The man wanted $500 for about a quarter of an ounce of "very poor quality heroin."

She didn't have the money but told English she wanted money for Christmas presents and he gave her $300. With $200 of her own money, she bought the heroin Dec. 3 in the Red Lion beer parlor, tried it in the washroom "and it seemed all right to me."

The next day, English telephoned her to ask her if she wanted to go out and she said for a change she would like to go to a motel room with the children.

But what she really wanted to do, she told court, was to "cap up the heroin I had gotten."

CIA Assassination Plots 'Successful'

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The chairman of a new House of Representatives subcommittee, which is concentrating on the Central Intelligence Agency's secret probe of its own misdeeds, said today he knows of "successful assassination plots" but refused to identify any victims.

Asked about a newspaper account quoting him as saying he was told the CIA had been involved in the actual assassination of at least one foreign leader, Representative James Stanton (Dem.—Ohio) declared:

"The reporter asked me, 'Do you know of any successful assassination plots?' I responded yes."

Stanton was interviewed on CBS-TV Morning News about an account in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Asked for details about the "successful to open the doors of justice to the poor."

He called the task "a great social challenge" compounded by the "insensitive violence" on television which tends to "glorify the killer and treat the victim with scorn."

Such propaganda, he said, perpetuates a disregard for the rights of society.

"There can't be respect for law where a society allows respect to flourish," he said.

The highlight of the conference takes place tonight when Justice Minister Otto Lang will deliver an address on the future of legal aid in Canada.

Cowie, in his speech, indicated the rapid expansion of legal aid services was long overdue but added the growth will present problems.

He cited four areas of concern — the delivery of legal aid services, the control of such services, the involvement of community, and the escalating costs.

He said in delivering legal aid the issue was to achieve a desirable balance between judicare type plans and community or neighbourhood legal aid schemes. In the former private lawyers handle cases on a fee for service basis; in the latter legal aid casework is conducted by full-time salaried lawyers. British Columbia and Manitoba offer a combination of both.

Cowie said the question of control will have to be resolved. For example, should legal aid be administered by independent commissions, committees or law societies?

He declared community involvement "goes to the heart" of the matter and yet hasn't been touched upon.

He said that because of escalating costs it will be necessary to set up some mechanism to examine the programs to ensure a qualitative service is being consistently delivered.

Cowie pointed out the provinces and federal government were involved in three basic programs at present — a cost-

PLAN BLOCKS PARK

Chairman Jim Campbell told the Capital Regional Board Wednesday that an industrial park proposed by the federal government at Patricia Bay is prohibited at the moment by the official regional plan.

An industrial park of about 40 acres is planned alongside the Oceanographic Institute being built at Patricia Bay. Environment Canada intends light industry related to oceanographic work to locate in it and says such a plan has been part of discussions from the outset.

Campbell said there are two issues involved. The first is whether such a park would be appropriate use of the land and the second relates to the regional plan approved last year.

John Brewin, deputy chairman of the B.C. Justice Development Commission told the Times later the cost of the province's current legal aid program, expected to run between $8 to $10 million, will be $6.4 million.

Workshops are planned throughout today and Friday.

sharing agreement on criminal matters only, community legal aid projects, and the native court worker program;

Under the cost-sharing arrangement the federal government will pay 90 per cent of the legal aid costs up to 50 cents per capita, or a maximum of about $11 million. The rest comes from provincial coffers.

Campbell said the money is really an advance on operating funds and if the hospital ever shut down, the region would get it back.

But as that's unlikely, the region sees the money disappearing indefinitely, part of the financial machinery to keep the hospital running.

The board instructed executive director Dennis Young to draft a resolution calling for a change which the region will take before the UBCM.

There's no logic to the government position, said director Ald Hood. He added that the board is awaiting a response from Sauve.

$75,000 for Hospital 'A Lousy Arrangement'

The Capital Regional Hospital Board has to come up with $75,000 cash to get newly-acquired Aberdeen Hospital under way in what one director Wednesday called "a lousy arrangement."

And the board intends taking the issue to the Union of B.C. Municipalities in hopes pressure will lead the provincial government to change its ways. The matter turns on an intricacy of hospital financing. While the provincial government pays the operating costs of public hospitals, it won't provide the initial cash, the so-called working capital, to meet start-up bills.

In the case of the former Aberdeen private hospital, which province and region recently bought in partnership, it means the regional hospital board has to find $75,000 for working capital from funds voters have approved borrowing for capital spending.

There is strong feeling the provision of working capital should be assumed by the province.

"It's a lousy arrangement," he said of the current practice.

The board instructed executive director Dennis Young to draft a resolution calling for a change which the region will take before the UBCM.

There's no logic to the government position, said director Ald Hood. He added that

STUDY PASSED

A committee of the Capital Regional Board will explore the case for the board's establishing a social planning department.

A majority of board members voted for such a study Wednesday but four directors opposed even examining the question.

The resolution the board approved noted the region had such a department in the past but gave it up. It says a study may show the board is better able to co-ordinate regional social services than any other agency.

Director Alf Hood said the resolution does not in any way commit the board to taking on such work, only to exploring the feasibility of it.

Low Bid Accepted

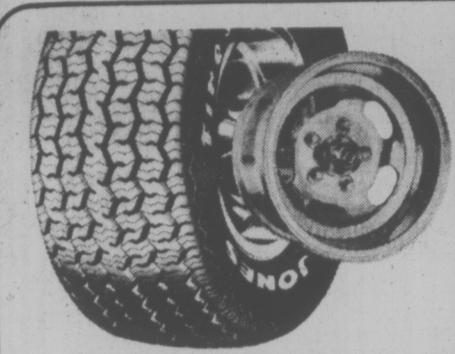

The lowest of four bids for construction of a senior citizens activity centre at the Juan de Fuca recreation complex was accepted by the Capital Regional Board Wednesday.

But the board postponed until its next meeting the problem of financing construction of an arena at Sooke, where tender came in well over budget.

H. E. Fowler and Sons Ltd. submitted the low bid for the activity centre, at $514,796. Other bids were: Herb Bate Ltd. at $516,451; K. C. Johnson Construction Ltd. at $528,236 and Liddell Construction Ltd. at $519,833.

Fowler also submitted the low bid on the Sooke arena, at $1,224,856, but the board has authority to spend only $830,000 on the project.

Ron Dumont, regional director from Sooke, said it appears another referendum asking Sooke district ratepayers to approve the additional borrowing needed will have to be held.

Gov't Tests Jetfoil For Speedy Crossing

By PAT DUFOUR

Times Staff

Fast jetfoil passenger service between downtown Victoria and Vancouver is being studied by the provincial government.

It is hoped to set up a similar service between downtown Vancouver and Nanaimo.

Creation of the service will move closer next week with the testing of a $7 million jetfoil made for Hong Kong by the Boeing Company of Seattle.

Cabinet members and other politicians will be aboard the 101-foot vessel Tuesday and Wednesday when it is put through its paces on trips between here and Vancouver.

Capable of a 45-knot speed, she carries 280 passengers and is due to be shipped to Hong Kong on June 21.

A B.C. Ferries spokesman said today the main reason the jetfoil is being tested is to assess what operating costs of such a vessel would be.

"We have been studying hydrofoils for two years and one of our men has just returned from Italy where he's been examining ones there," the spokesman said. "But this is a jetfoil and, using jet fuel, she has no prop. This makes her much more suitable for our type of water."

Boeing has designed three others, one of which is already operating in Hawaii, another is due to start working in the Hawaiian Islands in July while the third will be delivered to Hawaii later this year.

The spokesman said the hydrofoils designed for Hawaii would be more suitable for British Columbian waters, being designed to push through larger waves.

Indians Claim Clam Beds

The popular clam beds at Patricia Bay in North Saanich are now out of bounds — according to the Tseycum Indian Band.

The band's reserve lies alongside the bay and councillor Vernon Jack told the Times Wednesday the clam beds are part of the reserve.

"Trespassers will be prosecuted" signs have gone up between the West Saanich Road, which rims the bay, and the clam beds.

Jack said the signs have been put up because a band member who moored his boat there had valuable equipment stolen from it last year.

Another band member said today the signs are intended to protect an over-exploited clam population and the Indians won't be digging for them either.

A spokesman for the provincial lands department said today the matter is being studied.

Foreshore rights were a matter for negotiation at the time reserves were established, he said, and some bands do hold such rights.

CLAM CLAMPDOWN at Patricia Bay has been introduced by Tseycum Indian band. New signs are examined by band members Harry Jack (right) and young Thomas Williams.

PARIS (CP) — Canadians can expect a 33 per cent increase in postal rates within a year. Canadian Postmaster-General Bryce Mackay said Wednesday.

Mackay, in Paris to meet with his French counterpart, Eymard Achille-Fould, said the increase would be necessary to improve postal service.

The rate for first-class mail in Britain and France is twice that of Canada, while West Germans pay three times as much, he said.

The minister, while rating Canada's postal system third best in the world behind Belgium and Japan, said the immensity of the country and its sometimes interperate climate are responsible for periodic breakdowns in service.

Mackay, who returns Sunday to Ottawa, is meeting with senior French officials to day and Friday and will also inspect several mail-handling centres in the French capital.

He was guest of honor Wednesday at a luncheon promoting the sale of Canadian Olympic stamps in France.

HOLDUP BID: ONE DEAD

LYTTON (CP) — One man was shot to death and RCMP were searching for another after two men attempted to rob a bank courier car near here in the Fraser Canyon.

Details were sketchy, but apparently two men in a car pulled alongside a car containing employees of the Bank of Nova Scotia on their way to a branch in Boston Bar, 22 miles south of here.

The branch in Boston Bar is open only two days a week, when employees from the Lytton branch take money by car to Boston Bar.

Shots apparently were fired by someone in the bank car.

The other bandit, who escaped on foot, was not reported injured.

Kissinger called the meeting "A considerable step toward" in the latest search for middle east peace. "We view them in a positive manner," Kissinger told a news conference.

Jumbo Jet Burns

Greece in ECM?

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Greece today asked the nine-member European Community market to admit it as a full-fledged member "to consolidate democracy in Greece."

Planes Approved

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — The Belgian government survived a parliamentary vote of confidence today over the cabinet's decision to re-equip the Belgian air force with American F-16 fighters instead of the French F-1 Mirage.

Three cabinet ministers also fell, two to Liberals and one to a Conservative. Industry Minister Kofi Thorsen; Social Services Minister Alex Taylor and Co-operation Minister Don Cody.

The Liberals also had losses, dropping to 32 per cent from 43 per cent in popular vote, but maintained their number of seats with victories in other ridings.

"It is the PCs who have defeated us in this election," Steur said, adding that in view of the impressive Conservative showing "it's a wonder we weren't wiped out."

Conservative Leader Dick Collier, meanwhile, declined all public comment Wednesday night and said he would make a statement sometime today.

The 39-year-old Saskatoon businessman, chosen leader two years ago when the party had fewer than 300 members, built it up to a strength of more than 10,000.

The Conservative share of the popular vote jumped to 28 per cent from two per cent, although some of the increase was due to the fact the party had a full slate of candidates this time and only 16 in 1971.

It was the first time the Conservatives had elected a member of the legislature since 1964 and it was their best showing since they won 24 seats in 1929 and formed a coalition government.

Civil Service Cuts But Layoffs Denied

By LINDA HUGHES

Times Staff

British Columbia's civil service has stopped growing and government sources indicate the number of government employees may decline this year.

The civil service has been growing an average of five to seven per cent a year in recent times but this year there may be fewer government employees than last. Public Service Commission chairman A. R. Richardson told the Times today.

But both Richardson and B.C. Government Employees Union representatives deny rumors of civil service lay-offs.

"No continuous or permanent staff have been laid off," said Richardson, adding that recent figures show there are 36,500 government employees.

Many temporary or auxiliary staff, hired for a short term, usually three months, have not been rehired, he said, but there are no extraordinary numbers of those.

A spokesman for the B.C.G.E.U. said the union has also been deluged with rumors of layoff, but has found no evidence to back up the claims.

But an April 29 Treasury Board memo, acquired by the Times, instructs all departments they must receive Treasury Board approval before hiring any new staff even to replace employees who have left.

While the memo does not specify any cutback, it clearly indicates that Treasury Board (made up of the premier and three cabinet ministers) has full power to dictate any cutbacks in spending or staffing.

The memo indicates that up until June 1 there was to be no purchases or replacements of any motor vehicle, equipment and machinery, office furniture, or acquisitions such as pictures, paintings or museum pieces.

Both he and Premier Barrett have denied opposition statements that any purchases or replacements of any motor vehicle, equipment and machinery, office furniture, or acquisitions such as pictures, paintings or museum pieces.

Both he and Premier Barrett have denied opposition statements that a 10 per cent cutback in spending today or tomorrow may be cutting back on the decision of individual minister.

After that date Treasury Board would have to approve all such expenditures.

Any grants, other than of a statutory nature, would require Treasury Board approval and all hiring, even if approved in budget estimates, would have to get further approval.

The memo does not say what policy or cutbacks Treasury Board will follow when it receives spending requests.

Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall agreed that the result of the government's tight spending program has been a possible reduction in the number of civil servants.

He said departments have been asked to keep staff levels the same as last year and he indicated Treasury Board has been slow in replacing people who leave.

Get-It-Yourself Gas: The Service Has Gone

Being some items selected from a man's personal diary:

Item: Into my first self-service gasoline station today, by accident, and I will make a point of seeing that it does not happen again.

Under the guise of saving us a few pennies the major oil companies are involved in a rip-off of the motoring public that ought to be obvious to everyone.

One cashier, paid at the minimal wage, needing only the ability to punch a register, has replaced the men who once provided a genuine service and, more, a check against accident-producing faults in the vehicles that came to their pumps.

If you want gas, oil, water, air, a clean windshield and, in the process, an expert, roving eye over the fundamental working parts of your car, that's up to you and you alone.

It's a trend that can only add to the already horrendous statistics on unemployment and make our roads more dangerous than they already are.

I believe that the motoring public will realize that a gas-line station must also be a service station and that anything else is a false economy. Meanwhile, it is a sales gimmick that needs to be regulated and closely watched.

Item: The death this week of a man I liked very much, Adrian Wolf-Milner, but I did not go to the funeral and have not been to one in several years. Attendance at such affairs is, I know, a mark of respect, however painful they may be, but they always intrude, it seems to me, on the remembrance of a man or a woman as they were.

I used to think that a display of grief was the best of all antidotes on the passing of a friend or relative. When I was in my late teens and had more or less adopted another family for my home away from home, the mother died suddenly. It was a family of the Jewish faith and I was tremendously impressed by what I remember as a week-long orthodox ceremony with all its symbolism and outpouring of sadness.

Yet the mother had been a wonderfully jolly woman with a strength of humor in good times and bad and I found it hard to remember her way after the terrible, draining finality of these formalized services.

Seems to me that one day we will consider such ceremonies as archaic and that the Memorial Society idea, which calls for the removal of the body almost immediately after death and the simplest of commemorative gatherings by those who were close to the deceased, will take their place. It is certainly the way I want to go, though I don't much want to go.

As for Adrian, he is the only man I've known who took an active part in almost every community project and yet was never resented or suspected of self-interest. He was, in every way, a concerned and good citizen, that rarest of men.

Item: Purely by accident, found some 30 old reels of eight-millimetre film, exposed more than 20 years ago in the year that my hobby was home movies, in an old trunk in the basement. So we borrowed a projector and screen from our neighbor, expecting only a laugh or two, and, instead, found ourselves wallowing in nostalgia and happy memories.

I forgot now why I gave up this hobby — probably because I thought it too expensive — but I've never been sorry about anything than that I abandoned it.

No memory, no snapshot album, can bring back the past so clearly as film. It can be a tiresome exercise for one who is not involved, but for a growing family this surely is the greatest of all the records of the passing years, as fresh today as they were when they were taken. I wish I'd kept it up.

Item: Another long and fruitless argument, this time with the Victoria writer I most admire, over the effect of the biographies of literary men and women, the case in point being the new work on James Thurber.

He feels that the reader has a right to know of the agonies and the idiosyncrasies of the writer, that, if anything, it only adds to his stature to know that a work of art came out of blood, sweat and tears.

I feel that a writer should be judged solely on the basis of his published body of work and that it can only detract from this when we know what went on behind the scenes. In the case of a politician, a statesman, a soldier or any policymaker whose decisions may affect us all, then we need to know of their true personality and character, but with a writer all we need or ought to know is what he produced.

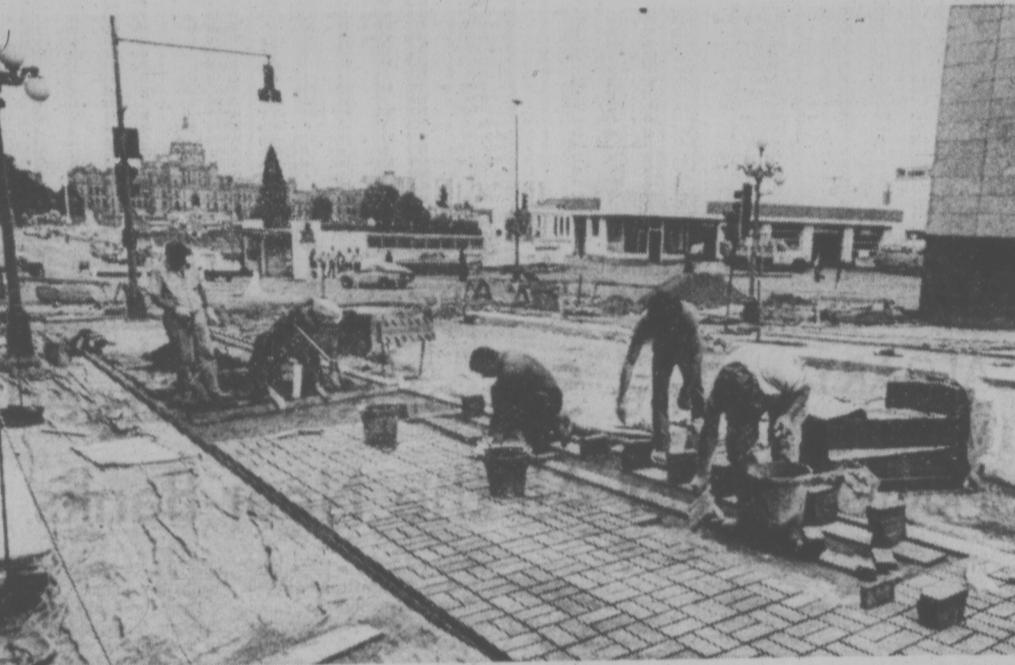

My, I do love a good argument.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you tell me if there is anywhere in Canada where one can acquire training to become a ship's radio operator? G.B.

A. There is only one commercial ship's radio operator school in Canada. It is the Red River Community College and the address is 2055 Notre Dame Avenue, Winnipeg, Man. R3H 6J9. The ministry of transport, however, trains radio operators for its coast guard ships and shore installations. There are open competitions, advertised at post offices and Canadian Manpower offices. If accepted, the applicant receives six weeks of basic training locally — in Victoria this would be at the Victoria Marine Station in Sooke — and then is sent to Ottawa for six months of training at the department's school. On qualifying, the graduates return to serve in their various regions.

Three-Block Effort on Mall

Three blocks of the five-block-long Government Street Mall will be completed in the first phase of construction before work is suspended for the peak tourist season.

The original schedule called for completion of only two blocks by the end of June, and then a halt to the work for July and August before it resumed in the fall.

But city engineer John Sansom has informed city council that merchants and businessmen on the 1000-block between Broughton and Fort have formally requested that the first phase also include work on their section of the street.

There was only one dissenter to the petition, said Sansom.

"They have asked if we could proceed with construction of the third block, because in their opinion the major amount of sales and tourist business takes place in this month.

Meanwhile, said Sansom, work on the first two blocks is well up to schedule and concrete pouring should begin late this week or early next week.

Construction will be completed on those blocks by the end of June, and the lower section of Government Street re-opened to traffic by the second week in July.

Parks department staff will soon begin planting trees and shrubs, and Sansom's department is preparing designs for appropriate "street furniture" to install on the mall.

Some aldermen argued that any bylaw attempting to enforce the unnecessarily rigorous requirements of the National Building Code would place an unfair financial burden on the owners of older buildings.

Finally, de Villiers pointed a way out of the dilemma last month. He noted that a special city bylaw might be sufficient, as all the fire prevention powers sought by Sansom were contained in the provincial Fire Marshal Act which was amended and toughened up last year.

Among other provisions, the act allows the fire marshal's local assistant — the fire chief — to order any building owner to upgrade fire exits, fire alarms and detection system, emergency lighting and other safety standards, regardless of the requirements of municipal building regulations.

But still city council was concerned, because the act does not involve municipal councils in the appeal procedure.

It merely allows any building owner to appeal a written order of the fire chief to the fire marshal himself; or to launch a further appeal to a county court judge if the expense involved in compliance with the order exceeds $500.

Aldermen asked de Villiers to give an opinion on whether the city could have some say in the appeal procedure, but he informed them Tuesday that he didn't consider that possible.

"It would be usurping the powers of the fire marshal and the courts," he said.

Those who have articles to donate but want them picked up can phone 386-2627, 382-2519 or 477-5927.

Fire broke out in the penthouse suite of the three-storey building at 3:30 a.m. Members of the Saanich volunteer fire brigade battled the flames for several hours.

Cause of the fire is still being investigated. There were no injuries.

The building was owned by Corey Kudum of River Bottom Road.

David's Plugged In Again

David Saville Peck has a phone again.

B.C. Tel assured Saville Peck late Wednesday that his phone service would be restored immediately, he said.

Saville Peck, of 1015 Jenkins, had his phone cut off by B.C. Tel early Tuesday because he refused to pay a "maintained credit" payment of $200.

B.C. Tel was asking for the $200 payment because of a three-year dispute Saville Peck has had with the telephone company in England over a bill. The company here said he would get his $200 back after he settled the disputed British bill, also for about $200.

After a Times story Wednesday, Saville Peck said the company has agreed that he does not need to pay either the $200 credit payment to B.C. Tel or the $200 British bill.

He said he made out a British money order for £10, payable to the General Post Office which operated Britain's phone system as a "show of good faith."

He turned over the money order to B.C. Tel which will send it to England and try to get an itemized account of Saville Peck's disputed British bill. In three years of correspondence about the disputed bill, Saville Peck has been unable to obtain an itemized account.

Who Would Operate Joint Water System?

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

It was one more step down the road Wednesday in the long trek towards a regional system of water supply.

A growing water shortage on the Saanich Peninsula, underlined by the plummeting level of Elk-Beaver Lakes, sparked 30 minutes of vigorous debate on the Capital Regional Board — even though directors concede it's officially none of their business.

The board's jurisdiction does not include water supply but that could change if peninsula directors, and some others, eventually have their way. It's turning into a lengthy dispute which in general pits the directors from Victoria, Saanich and Oak Bay against those from rural areas.

No one appears to dispute the need for a co-ordinated water system to serve the Capital district. At issue is who's going to run it?

The three core municipalities now operate the Greater Victoria Water District, a system which brings water from the Sooke watershed through an expensive tunnel and pipe system developed over years.

That system represents a major capital investment by ratepayers in Victoria, Saanich and Oak Bay and the directors representing them aren't about to see others benefit without paying their share.

They argue the water board could provide and operate an expanded system serving the peninsula without the need to regionalize the service.

Peninsula communities now get their water from a series of wells and from Elk Lake.

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Fast jetfoil passenger service between downtown Victoria and Vancouver is being studied by the provincial government.

It is hoped to set up a similar service between downtown Vancouver and Nanaimo.

Creation of the service will move closer next week with the testing of a $7 million jetfoil made for Hong Kong by the Boeing Company of Seattle.

Cabinet members and other politicians will be aboard the 101-foot vessel Tuesday and Wednesday when it is put through its paces on trips between here and Vancouver.

Capable of a 45-knot speed, she carries 280 passengers and is due to be shipped to Hong Kong on June 21.

A B.C. Ferries spokesman said today the main reason the jetfoil is being tested is to assess what operating costs of such a vessel would be.

"We have been studying hydrofoils for two years and one of our men has just returned from Italy where he's been examining ones there," the spokesman said. "But this is a jetfoil and, using jet fuel, she has no prop. This makes her much more suitable for our type of water."

Boeing has designed three others, one of which is already operating in Hawaii, another is due to start working in the Hawaiian Islands in July while the third will be delivered to Hawaii later this year.

The spokesman said the jetfoils designed for Hawaii would be more suitable for British Columbian waters, being designed to push through larger waves.

Indians Claim Clam Beds

The popular clam beds at Patricia Bay in North Saanich are now out of bounds — according to the Tseycum Indian Band.

The band's reserve lies alongside the bay and councillor Vernon Jack told the Times Wednesday the clam beds are part of the reserve.

"Trespassers will be prosecuted" signs have gone up between the West Saanich Road, which rims the bay, and the clam beds.

Jack said the signs have been put up because a band member who moored his boat there had valuable equipment stolen from it last year.

Another band member said today the signs are intended to protect an over-exploited clam population and the Indians won't be digging for them either.

A spokesman for the provincial lands department said today the matter is being studied.

Foreshore rights were a matter for negotiation at the time reserves were established, he said, and some bands do hold such rights.

The Soored leader says the premier had different information in his possession at that time in preparation for a statement to legislature June 6 that because of the previous government's financial management the railway really lost $8.1 million.

"There is no mention in the prospectus that at that very time the government was preparing a political financial statement for presentation in the legislature," said Bennett.

"We have a prospectus containing the financial statements of the province, signed by the deputy minister of finance (Geral Bryson) with also the secretary of the B.C.R. and no mention that the auditing procedures of the railway were being investigated."

"Now we have B.C. the laughing stock of international markets because of the differences," Bennett said.

Barrett refuted all the opposition leader's charges as "malicious."

He said that when the prospectus was filed the new auditing company had been on the job only three weeks, making it impossible for their findings to be included in the document.

"As usual the opposition leader has not done his research. He asked to meet with the deputy finance minister after he made the charges, not before."

The opposition leader is wrong. He's stumbling on one issue after another but hasn't done a lick of research."

U.S. regulations required the government to file an audited statement and that was what was done, Barrett said.

The premier said he will file the latest annual report with the commission when he travels to New York next week.

ICBC Strikers Protest

By LIZ HUGHES

Protesting the "Inconclusive, Callous, Barbaric Conditions" (ICBC), otherwise known as the Insurance Corporation of B.C., about 300 striking employees of the corporation demonstrated in front of the legislature today. (See picture on Page A3.)

Members of Local 378 of the Office and Technical Employees Union, on strike against the crown insurance agency for three weeks, accused negotiators for the corporation of adopting a take it or leave it attitude which precludes good faith bargaining.

In a debate with Transport Minister Bob Strachan, who emerged from the legislative buildings to confront the group on the front steps, OTEU president Fred Trotter charged the corporation had been preparing for a strike as early as March 6.

"This was way before we even got to negotiating about any controversial issues," Trotter said.

Trotter, supported by the cheering crowd, said negotiations had never dealt with wage issues because wages cannot be settled until other clauses, such as job classification, are dealt with.

Strachan, having trouble speaking over the catcalls of the crowd, told the strikers they were simply exercising their freedom to use economic power to bring the employer to its knees.

The minister reiterated earlier statement that ICBC has not indulged in strike-breaking.

"We will continue to help out on hardship cases. There is a widow whose husband was killed and she needs the death benefits right now and I'll do everything I can. If there is some old-age pensioner whose house has burned down, I'll do all I can," Strachan said.

Official misdeleculations, a breakdown in communications and slow-moving authorities marked the tragic last five hours of this week's B.C. Penitentiary hostage drama, the Commons was told Wednesday.

Solicitor General Warren Allmand related the difficulties he experienced in getting regional penitentiary officials to consider quickly the offer of a still unnamed country to take the three convicts holding 15 hostages in the New Westminster institution.

Repeatedly he insisted there was no delay by the government in dealing with the foreign offer but disclosed that prison officials in B.C. were just beginning to discuss the subject when the hostages took the matter into their own hands.

Allmand disclosed:

—Penitentiary officials on the scene were taken completely by surprise by the attempt of the hostages to overpower their captors and that they thought everyone "was settling down for the night."

—Authorities were not prepared to inform the convicts of the foreign country's offer until the morning.

The B.C. Regional Director of penitentiaries, Jim Murphy, could not be reached for some time because he had gone home to Abbotsford, nearly 40 miles away, "to freshen up."

DRUG SWOOP

RCMP began a massive roundup today of 132 persons in the lower mainland who face a total of 221 drug trafficking and drug conspiracy offences.

Suspects were being picked up in Vancouver, Surrey and North Vancouver.

PARIS (CP) — Canadians can expect a 33 per cent increase in postal rates within a year, Canadian Postmaster-General Bryce Mackay said Wednesday.

Mackay, in Paris to meet with his French counterpart, Eymard Achille-Fould, said the increase would be necessary to improve postal service.

The rate for first-class mail in Britain and France is twice that of Canada, while West Germans pay three times as much, he said.

The minister, while rating Canada's postal system third best in the world behind Belgium and Japan, said the immensity of the country and its sometimes intemperate climate are responsible for periodic breakdowns in service.

Mackay, who returns Sunday to Ottawa, is meeting with senior French officials to day and Friday and will also inspect several mail-handling centres in the French capital.

Details were sketchy, but apparently two men in a car pulled alongside a car containing employees of the Bank of Nova Scotia on their way to a branch in Boston Bar, 22 miles south of here.

The branch in Boston Bar is open only two days a week, when employees from the Lytton branch take money by car to Boston Bar.

Shots apparently were fired by someone in the bank car.

The other bandit, who escaped on foot, was not reported injured.

Liberals Fall

Three cabinet ministers also fell, two to Liberals and one to a Conservative: Industry Minister Kim Thorson; Social Services Minister Alex Taylor and Co-operation Minister Don Cody.

The Liberals also had losses, dropping to 32 per cent from 43 per cent in popular vote, but maintained their number of seats with victories in other ridings.

"It is the PCs who have defeated us in this election," Stewart said, adding that in view of the impressive Conservative showing "it's a wonder we weren't wiped out."

Conservative Leader Dick Colver, meanwhile, declined all public comment Wednesday night and said he would make a statement sometime today.

The 39-year-old Saskatoon businessman, chosen leader two years ago when the party had fewer than 300 members, built it up to a strength of more than 10,000.

The Conservative share of the popular vote jumped to 28 per cent from two per cent, although some of the increase was due to the fact the party had a full slate of candidates this time and only 16 in 1971.

It was the first time the Conservatives had elected a member of the legislature since 1964 and it was their best showing since they won 24 seats in 1929 and formed a coalition government.

Civil Service Cuts

But Layoffs Denied

By LINDA HUGHES

Times Staff

British Columbia's civil service has stopped growing and government sources indicate the number of government employees may decline this year.

The civil service has been growing an average of five to seven per cent a year in recent times but this year there may be fewer government employees than last, Public Service Commission chairman A. R. Richardson told the Times today.

But both Richardson and B.C. Government Employees Union representatives deny rumors of civil service layoffs.

"No continuous or permanent staff have been laid off," said Richardson, adding that recent figures show there are 36,500 government employees.

Many temporary or auxiliary staff, hired for a short term, usually three months, have not been rehired, he said, but there are no extraordinary numbers of those.

A spokesman for the B.C.G.E.U. said the union has also been deluged with rumors of layoff but has found no evidence to back up the claims.

But April 29 Treasury Board memo, acquired by the Times, instructs all departments they must receive Treasury Board approval before hiring any new staff even to replace employees who have left.

While the memo does not specify any cutbacks in staff it clearly indicates that Treasury Board (made up of the premier and three cabinet ministers) has full power to dictate any cutbacks in spending or staffing.

The memo indicates that up until June 1 there was to be no purchases or replacement of any motor vehicle, equipment and machinery, office furniture, or acquisitions such as pictures, paintings or museum pieces.

In trying to explain the five-hour time lapse to Stanfield, Allmand said he took the advice of the "people on the spot" not to convey the foreign country's offer to the inmates directly.

After Allmand had related the sequence of phone calls and discussion to the House, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield demanded whether the solicitor general honestly felt "that the government's apparatus and organization for dealing with this kind of emergency is adequate."

In trying to explain the five-hour time lapse to Stanfield, Allmand said he took the advice of the "people on the spot" not to convey the foreign country's offer to the inmates directly.

He told reporters outside the House later that he understood the offer was not to be passed into the penitentiary until morning.

Although he attached no blame to Murphy for not

Bungling Admitted in Pen Incident

being at the penitentiary, Allmand recalled phoning an official whom he described as "the acting regional director" on at least one occasion.

"I conveyed information as quickly as I could and they conveyed it to me as quickly as they could," he insisted.

Opposition MPs argued that the government should set up a royal commission to look into the whole "tragic affair" to deal with reasons for what they called the delay in government action.

Get-It-Yourself Gas: The Service Has Gone

Being some items selected from a man's personal diary:

Item: Into my first self-service gasoline station today, by accident, and I will make a point of seeing that it does not happen again.

Under the guise of saving us a few pennies the major oil companies are involved in a rip-off of the motoring public that ought to be obvious to everyone.

One cashier, paid at the minimal wage, needing only the ability to punch a register, has replaced the men who once provided a genuine service and, more, a check against accident-producing faults in the vehicles that came to their pumps.

If you want gas, oil, water, air, a clean windshield and, in the process, an expert, roving eye over the fundamental working parts of your car, that's up to you and you alone.

It's a trend that can only add to the already horrendous statistics on unemployment and make our roads more dangerous than they already are.

I believe that the motoring public will realize that a gas station must also be a service station and that anything else is a false economy. Meanwhile, it is a sales gimmick that needs to be regulated and closely watched.

Item: The death this week of a man I liked very much, Adrian Wolf-Milner, but I did not go to the funeral and have not been to one in several years. Attendance at such affairs is, I know, a mark of respect, however painful they may be, but they always intrude, it seems to me, on the remembrance of a man or a woman as they were.

I used to think that a display of grief was the best of all antidotes on the passing of a friend or relative. When I was in my late teens and had more or less adopted another family for my home away from home, the mother died suddenly. It was a family of the Jewish faith and I was tremendously impressed by what I remember as a week-long orthodox ceremony with all its symbolism and outpouring of sadness.

Yet the mother had been a wonderfully jolly woman with a strength of humor in good times and bad and I found it hard to remember her that way after the terrible, draining finality of these formalized services.

Seems to me that one day we will consider such ceremonies as archaic and that the Memorial Society idea, which calls for the removal of the body almost immediately after death and the simplest of commemorative gatherings by those who were close to the deceased, will take their place. It is certainly the way I want to go, though I don't much want to go.

As for Adrian, he is the only man I've known who took an active part in almost every community project and yet was never resented or suspected of self-interest. He was, in every way, a concerned and good citizen, that rarest of men.

Item: Purely by accident, found some 20 old reels of eight-millimetre film, exposed more than 20 years ago in the year that my hobby was home movies, in an old trunk in the basement! So we borrowed a projector and screen from our neighbor, expecting only a laugh or two, and, instead, found ourselves wallowing in nostalgia and happy memories.

I forgot now why I gave up this hobby — probably because I thought it too expensive — but I've never been sorrier about anything than that I abandoned it.

No memory, no snapshot album, can bring back the past so clearly as film. It can be a tiresome exercise for one who is not involved, but for a growing family this surely is the greatest of all the records of the passing years, as fresh today as they were when they were taken. I wish I'd kept it up.

Item: Another long and fruitless argument, this time with the Victoria writer I most admire, over the effect of the biographies of literary men and women, the case in point being the new work on James Thurber.

He feels that the reader has a right to know of the agonies and the idiosyncrasies of the writer, that, if anything, it only adds to his stature to know that a work of art came out of blood, sweat and tears.

I feel that a writer should be judged solely on the basis of his published body of work and that it can only detract from this when we know what went on behind the scenes. In the case of a politician, a statesman, a soldier or any policymaker whose decisions may affect us all, then we need to know of their true personality and character, but with a writer all we need or ought to know is what he produced.

My, I do love a good argument.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you tell me if there is anywhere in Canada where one can acquire training to become a ship's radio operator? G.B.

A. There is only one commercial ship's radio operator school in Canada. It is the Red River Community College and the address is 2055 Notre Dame Avenue, Winnipeg, Man. R3H 0J9. The ministry of transport, however, trains radio operators for its coast guard ships and shore installations. There are open competitions, advertised at post offices and Canada Manpower offices. If accepted, the applicant receives six weeks of basic training locally — in Victoria this would be at the Victoria Marine Station in Sooke — and then is sent to Ottawa for six months of training at the department's school. On qualifying, the graduates return to serve in their various regions.

They argue the water board could provide and operate an expanded system serving the peninsula without the need to regionalize the service. Peninsula communities now get their water from a series of wells and from Elk Lake.

That system represents a major capital investment by ratepayers in Victoria, Saanich and Oak Bay and the directors representing them aren't about to see others benefit without paying their share.

Meanwhile, domestic and agricultural water demands are increasing, particularly during a dry year like this one, on the peninsula and Saanich is worrying about the levels in Elk and Beaver Lakes.

Director Sandy Noel suggested Wednesday a temporary solution would be to run an interim pipeline of about two miles from a major main in the GVWD system at the south end of Beaver Lake to the pumping station on Elk Lake which feeds water up the peninsula.

Central Saanich has a water rights permit to take up to 1.5 million gallons a day from the lake, passing some of it on to the north of the peninsula. It

Three-Block Effort on Mall

Three blocks of the five-block-long Government Street Mall will be completed in the first phase of construction before work is suspended for the peak tourist season.

The original schedule called for completion of only two blocks by the end of June, and then a halt to the work for July and August before it resumed in the fall.

But city engineer John Sansom has informed city council that merchants and businessmen on the 1000-block between Broughton and Fort have formally requested that the first phase also include work on their section of the street.

There was only one dissenter to the petition, said Sansom.

"They have asked if we could proceed with construction of the third block, because in their opinion the major amount of sales and tourist business takes place in August and September, rather than in the July-August period."

He said the businessmen concerned have no objection to the construction extending into the second or third week of July. But a start on widening the sidewalks would be made this month.

Meanwhile, said Sansom, work on the first two blocks is well up to schedule and concrete pouring should begin late this week or early next week.

Construction will be completed on those blocks by the end of June, and the lower section of Government re-opened to traffic by the second week in July.

Parks department staff will plant trees and shrubs, and Sansom's department is preparing designs for appropriate "street furniture" to install on the mall.

The green light was given by city council in caucus on Tuesday, after months of indecision on what form the fire chief's powers should take, how much personal discretion he should be allowed in enforcing them, and what building codes or standards should be used as a yardstick.

Simmons originally suggested that all such provisions be written into a thoroughly revised version of the city's fire prevention bylaw. He and city solicitor Jakob de Villiers spent some time drafting the amendments.

But when they were presented for discussion this spring, council couldn't reach any agreement on the precise wording.

Some aldermen argued that any bylaw attempting to enforce the unnecessarily rigorous requirements of the National Building Code would place an unfair financial burden on the owners of older buildings.

Finally, de Villiers pointed a way out of the dilemma last month. He noted that a special city bylaw might be superfluous, as all the fire prevention powers sought by Simmons were contained in the provincial Fire Marshal Act which was amended and toughened up last year.

Among other provisions, the act allows the fire marshal's local assistant — the fire chief — to order any building owner to upgrade fire exits, fire alarms and detection systems, emergency lighting and other safety standards, regardless of the requirements of municipal building regulations.

But still city council was concerned, because the act does not involve municipal councils in the appeal procedure.

It merely allows any building owner to appeal a written order of the fire chief to a court judge if the expense involved in compliance with the order exceeds $500.

Aldermen asked de Villiers to give an opinion on whether the city could have some say in the appeal procedure, but he informed them Tuesday that he didn't consider that possible.

"It would be usurping the powers of the fire marshal and the courts," he said.

Fire broke out in the penthouse suite of the three-storey building at 3:30 a.m. Members of the Sahtlam volunteer fire brigade battled the flames for several hours.

Cause of the fire is still being investigated. There were no injuries.

The building was owned by Corey Kallum of River Bottom Road, returning June 17.

David's Plugged In Again

David Saville Peck has a phone again.

B.C. Tel assured Saville Peck late Wednesday that his phone service would be restored immediately, he said.

Saville Peck, of 1015 Jenkins, had his phone cut off by B.C. Tel early Tuesday because he refused to pay a "maintained credit" payment of $200.

B.C. Tel was asking for the $200 payment because of a three-year dispute Saville Peck has had with the telephone company in England over a bill. The company here said he would get his $200 back after he settled the disputed British bill, also for about $200.

After a Times story Wednesday, Saville Peck said the company has agreed that he does not need to pay either the $200 credit payment to B.C. Tel or the $200 British bill.

He said he made out a British money order for £10, payable to the General Post Office which operated Britain's phone system as a "show of good faith."

He turned over the money order to B.C. Tel which will send it to England and try to get an itemized account of Saville Peck's disputed British bill. In three years of correspondence about the disputed bill, Saville Peck has been unable to obtain an itemized account.

Summer Law Course for Teachers

A summer course in law — believed the first of its kind in Canada — will be offered this year for high school teachers attending the University of Victoria Summer Session.

The announcement was made Wednesday night by Dean Murray Fraser of the Faculty of Law during his opening statement to the three-day national conference on legal aid being held at UVic.

Fraser said the course, jointly sponsored by the faculties of law and education, is designed to prepare better those teachers who will teach in the Law II high school program.

"The law should be made known and understood by all."

Eventually the course, entitled an Introduction to Law and Canadian Legal System, may be expanded into a series, he added.

Teachers will receive credit for successful completion of the course which will be held on an intensive basis for a three-week period during July.

The instructors will be law professors Ronald Cheffins, William Charles and Lyman Robinson assisted by Gary Goulson of the faculty of education.
